JUDGE TELLS OF PLOT TO RUIN HIS POLITICAL CAREER

M. A. Romjue of Macon, Mo.,
Asks for Federal Grand Jury Inquiry.

WOMAN IN SCHEME

Her Part Was to Ensnare Jurist,
but According to the Story
She Turned Heroine.

A melodramatic and extraordinary story which has been bubbling beneath Missouri Democratic politics for several days, came to the surface this morning when former Probate Judge M. A. Romjue of Macon came to St. Louis to demand a Federal grand jury investigation into what he declares was a political plot to ruin his reputation and break him politically.

Judge Romjue is a candidate for the Democratic congressional nomination for the First District in competition with State Senator Walter Goodson and former State Chairman Harry M. Roney of his home town, Sidney F. Roy of Hannibal, State Senator Charles F. Carter of Clark County, Judge Charles Stewart and Assistant Attorney-General Rutherford of Knox County.

Alleged Plot Foiled.
According to the Judge's story, the plan was to destroy him in Illinois with a young woman posing as a client in a law matter and then cause his arrest on a pretext that he had violated the Mann act. It is learned that the alleged plot was foiled through the refusal of the young woman to carry out her part of the arrangement when she learned what it was to be.

The villain of the piece is supposed to be an enemy of Judge Romjue. Letters, which he is supposed to have written together with affidavits of the young woman and her sister, through whom she became connected with the case, have been presented to United States District Attorney Oliver.

"Mrs. C. M. James, Kansas City."
This evidence, together with reports of private detectives tends to show, the Post-Dispatch has learned from well-informed sources, the following facts: The enemy wrote to a woman in St. Louis, who had been a stenographer in the employ of various political organizations, that he had a handsome, attractive young woman to undertake a delicate and confidential mission, for which she would be well paid. She must be a person of tact and discretion. After canvassing the list of acquaintances, the stenographer decided that she could find no one better fitted for the job than her sister. After some correspondence, the sister was instructed to go to Macon and register at a hotel there as "Mrs. C. M. James, Kansas City."

Spoke of Her Late "Husband."
"Mrs. James" apparently met all the requirements for the confidential agent. She wore widow's weeds and spoke demurely of the late Mr. James, but not in such a way as would compel anybody to suppose that she was really inconsolable forever. As she was making some inquiries as to her husband's supposed estate, it was natural that she should come in contact with the former Probate Judge. It had been arranged that she should ask the Judge to recommend to her a competent lawyer for services outside of his court, the expectation being that Judge Romjue would name himself.

In some way that has not become clear, the hitch came right along there. It seems, according to the story, that "Mrs. James" was willing to play the confidential agent to a limited extent, but figuring as the lady in a Mann act case and trying to ruin in such a manner the reputation of the agreeable Judge, was beyond her limit.

Woman Throws Up the Job.
At any rate, she told Judge Romjue enough of what was going on to give him a start, and then she threw up the job. A St. Louis detective agency was employed to obtain copies of the original letters between the stenographer, the stenographer's sister and Judge Romjue's enemy, as well as affidavits from the sisters. This it is said, has been done, and these things make the bulk of the evidence that has been put before the District Attorney.

Judge Romjue reached the city early this morning and immediately went into consultation with his attorney, Joseph T. Davis, who returned last night from a trip to Texas. Neither would make a statement about the case this morning, but both said they might do so later in the day. Judge Romjue is said to have given the outlines of this story to politicians at a Democratic conference in Kirksville recently. Because of this it was whispered that he and another candidate for the nomination would withdraw, but the Judge declares he is more determined upon fighting through the primaries than ever.

District Attorney Oliver has refused to comment on the evidence laid before him.

Jacob Goll, 45 years old, of 1010 Chouteau avenue, was fined $300 by Police Judge Sanders today on charges made by George Anderson of 1609 Franklin avenue, who testified that he had sent his 5-year-old daughter, Arline, to a store at 1855 Franklin avenue and, when she did not return home as quickly as he expected, he went to the store, where he was told that Goll had taken the girl away. Goll and the child were found in the rear of the store.

PORTLAND, Ore., July 21.—The problem of how to reduce the cost of laundering so that American housewives no longer could afford to have their work done at home occupied the attention today of the delegates to the convention of the Laundrymen's National Association of America by Chinese who, it was declared, annually receive $400,000,000 for laundry work done by them.

BODY OF M. E. STONE'S SON WHO WAS ON LUSITANIA FOUND

Come Ashore at Mouth of River
Shannon, 150 Miles From Where Liner Sank.

QUEENSTOWN, Ireland, July 21.—The body of Herbert E. Stone, son of M. E. Stone, general manager of the Associated Press, who was a Lusitania victim, has come ashore at Ballybunlon, a small town at the mouth of the River Shannon on the west coast of Ireland, about 150 miles from the point where the Lusitania was sunk. The body has been fully identified by articles upon the person, including a card case filled with cards, his watch and other belongings.

Two more bodies of victims of the Lusitania disaster have been washed ashore on the County Clare coast. One of them is that of a stewardess and the other of a man. A passbook in the man's clothing carried a name which apparently is "West."

PHILADELPHIA, July 21.—A cable message received here told of the recovery of the body of Harry J. Keser, a former vice president of the Philadelphia National Bank, one of the victims of the Lusitania disaster. Tides washed the body far around Fastnet Rock and up on the coast of Kerry. Mr. Keser also perished on the ship. Her body was recovered.

ACCUSED OF KILLING 2 WIVES

WICHITA, Kan., July 21.—A warrant charging first degree murder has been issued here for the arrest of George W. Ward, who is to be tried soon at West Plains, Mo., on a charge of murdering his wife and burning their home to hide the crime, near Willow Springs, Mo., last March. Ward's first wife was burned to death when a fire destroyed their home near Wichita in July, 1912.

If Ward is acquitted of the murder charge at West Plains, the arrest for the alleged murder of his wife in Wichita will be made, critics of the case convicted, the warrant will be placed in the hands of the Warden of the Missouri Penitentiary.

STANDARD OIL CO. STRIKERS IN RIOT; 1 DEAD, MANY HURT

Mob of Several Thousand Attacks
Police Guarding New Jersey Plant.

TRY TO WRECK FIRE HOUSE

Most Serious Clash Came When Men Discovered That Tide Water Oil Co. Plant Was in Operation.

NEW YORK, July 21.—Serious rioting, in which one man, John Molosky, 18 years old, was killed and nearly three score more or less seriously injured, marked the second day of the strike of workmen at the plant of the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey at Bayonne, N. J.

The workers, most of whom are of foreign birth and unorganized, gathered at the gates of the plant at an early hour, and disorder, which then began, lasted until nearly noon. At that time the police, assisted by Deputy Sheriffs and firemen, brought the situation under temporary control at least. The police say several thousand persons took part in the strike. Of the 30 injured taken to the Bayonne Hospital, 50 are men and boys who fought about the gates of the plant; the other three are policemen.

Inspector Cady's horse was shot from under him. Later the Inspector narrowly escaped serious injury when he was surrounded by rioters near a fire house where he had gone to stop an attack.

Sheriff Eugene Kinkadee of Hudson County arrived shortly after noon and took command. In an endeavor to bring an end to disorder by means of persuasion the Sheriff, soon after his arrival, rode in his automobile to a square, where a crowd of 500 persons were assembled to discuss the strike and watch the gates.

Standing in his car, he addressed the crowd, telling them they must remain orderly and his duties were in the situation. He called on every man who would obey him to hold up his hand and a majority did so.

Sheriff Kinkadee spoke for half an hour, and several times the men cheered his statements, especially his promise to do what he could to settle the difficulty. The Sheriff said he was willing to meet representatives of the strikers, hear their grievances and do his best to bring about a settlement. In consideration of this, he asked the men to disperse peacefully to their homes, and they said they would do so. A committee of three was appointed by the men to meet Sheriff Kinkadee later in the day.

There were three separate attacks by the rioters today. The first was at the fire house of an engine company and here all the windows were broken, after which the crowd moved on and attacked the police near the main gate of the Standard Oil plant. Three rioters were injured by bullets from the police's pistols before the crowd left.

Attack Plant That Was Running.
The rioters then made their way to the plant of the Tidewater Oil Co., half a mile away, which remained in operation today, though the strikers had been led to believe that the men there would join them today. As they approached the plant 1300 of the men there left their work and marched out to the crowd, but apparently this did not satisfy the rioters, as they made a rush at the police on guard.

The most serious fighting of the day followed and it was during this attack that Molosky was killed and a majority of the injured received their wounds. The police at first, it is stated, fired over the heads of the rioters, but when this had no effect they shot directly into the crowd. Even this did not stop the rioters and the police were almost out of ammunition when help arrived and the situation was brought under control. Sometime after this fight occurred a

WABASH RAILROAD SOLD AT AUCTION FOR $18,000,000

Bought by Robert Goellet and H. R. Winthrop, Representing Reorganization Committee.

BUT ONE BID WAS MADE

"May God Have Mercy on Your Souls," Special Master Says
in Accepting Offer.

The Wabash Railroad, including all the property, franchises and other rights of the $200,000,000 corporation, was sold for $18,000,000 today at public auction, under mortgage foreclosure, to Robert Goellet and Henry Rogers Winthrop of New York, representing the Wabash Joint Reorganization Committee.

The sale was made at 1 p. m. in the inbound freight house of the Wabash Railroad, Second street and Franklin avenue, by Chester H. Krum, special master appointed by the United States District Court. Krum accepted the bid, stating that it was sufficient to satisfy the "outstanding receivers' certificates and interest, costs and expenses of the sale and the special master's fee. The sale will be subject to the approval of the United States District Court.

Upon knocking the railroad down to Goellet and Winthrop, the sole bidders, Judge Krum turned them, and with a smile said very solemnly:

"And now, gentlemen, having accepted this bid, I think it may be appropriate for me to add: May God have mercy upon your souls."

Goellet and Winthrop and the group of New York bankers who attended the sale all laughed.

No One Offered to Pay Bills.

These obligations will be due Aug. 1. Krum stated that the receivers were unable to meet the payments, and that no bondholder, stockholder or other person had come forward and offered to pay these costs.

The foreclosure was ordered by the United States Court upon an action filed by the Equitable Trust Co. of New York, trustee for the holders of the $40,000,000 outstanding first refunding and extensions mortgage. The sale was first advertised for June 23, but at the request of the reorganization committee it was postponed until today.

The receivers of the Wabash, who have had charge of the property for several years, will continue to operate them until the Wabash company is reorganized, probably under the direction of the Joint Reorganization Committee.

Judge Krum will report the sale to the court, and it probably will be affirmed within three weeks, after which actual control will pass to the purchasers.

Bond Provided Made.

The deed of court, providing the sale of the road, provided that the bidders must deposit with the special master, before the day of the sale, either $1,700,000 in cash or $3,500,000 of the first refunding mortgage bonds. A deposit of bonds, Krum stated, was made with the Equitable Trust Co. of New York acting for him by Goellet and Winthrop.

Lawrence Greer of Pierce & Greer represented the Equitable Trust Co. at the sale. George W. Murray of the banking firm of Murray & Prentice and R. H. Nielson of Cravath & Henderson represented the banking firm of Kuhn, Loeb & Co. of New York.

The bid on behalf of the Reorganization Committee was read by Goellet, who handed it to Judge Krum.

Kansas City Terminal Gives Notice.
Before the sale was made Samuel Sawyer, assistant solicitor for the Kansas City Terminal Railway Co., and others, read a notice that the purchasers would be held liable for all of the contracts and agreements of the Wabash with the Kansas City company and the railroads and financial institutions interested in it. Sears Lehmann of St. Louis filed a protest relating to a Clay County right of way contest.

Judge Krum spent nearly an hour reading the different orders of Court pertaining to the sale, and the financial statements required of the receivers. He said that the sale included all of the properties of every kind of the Wabash Railroad, including all the rolling stock, track, franchises, terminals and rights and interests in other railroad properties.

The group of financiers who attended the sale found much amusement in the fact that several hundred cases of a popular brand of champagne were stored in the freight station, within a few feet of where Judge Krum auctioned off the big railroad system.

Champagne Not for Purchasers of Road.
Goellet, Winthrop and others inquired solicitously as to whether the champagne was placed there for the benefit of intending purchasers, but E. B. Pryor, one of the receivers, assured them that it was not. The freight house was partly filled with green corn, apples, butter, ice and other freight.

Just as Judge Krum declared that the Wabash was now the property of Goellet and Winthrop, one of two office kittens, which had shown considerable excitement while the sale was in progress, placed itself at Goellet's feet and began purring, as if to acknowledge loyalty to its new master.

The cost of the sale was estimated by the receivers at $600, but they stated that they had no idea what the fee of the special master would be. This statement was required by order of the court. Twice before in its history the Wabash

Archives Removed From Baltic Port and Thousands of

and Experts Expect Loss of Warsaw.

Petrograd Admits Germans
Are Before Novo Georgievsk, One of the Fortresses Protecting Polish Capital.

By Associated Press.

ST. LOUIS, July 21.—News comes from Berlin that the Russians are preparing to evacuate Riga, the important Baltic port against which the Germans are advancing steadily. Archives have been removed and inhabitants are fleeing. The latest success reported for the Austrians and Germans in their sweep toward Warsaw is the capture of Radom, capital of the province of Radom, 57 miles south of Warsaw. Its occupation by the Teutons is announced in an official statement issued in Vienna.

From the shores of the Gulf of Riga in the north to that part of Southern Poland into which they drove the Russians from Galicia, the Austro-German armies still are surging forward, and if Warsaw can be denied them it will be almost a miracle.

Evacuation Would Be No Surprise.

This seems to be the consensus of opinion, even among those in England who heretofore have been hopeful that the Russians would turn and deliver a counter blow and news of the evacuation of the Polish capital followed by the triumphant entry of the Germans and such scenes were enacted at Przemysl and Lemberg would come as no surprise.

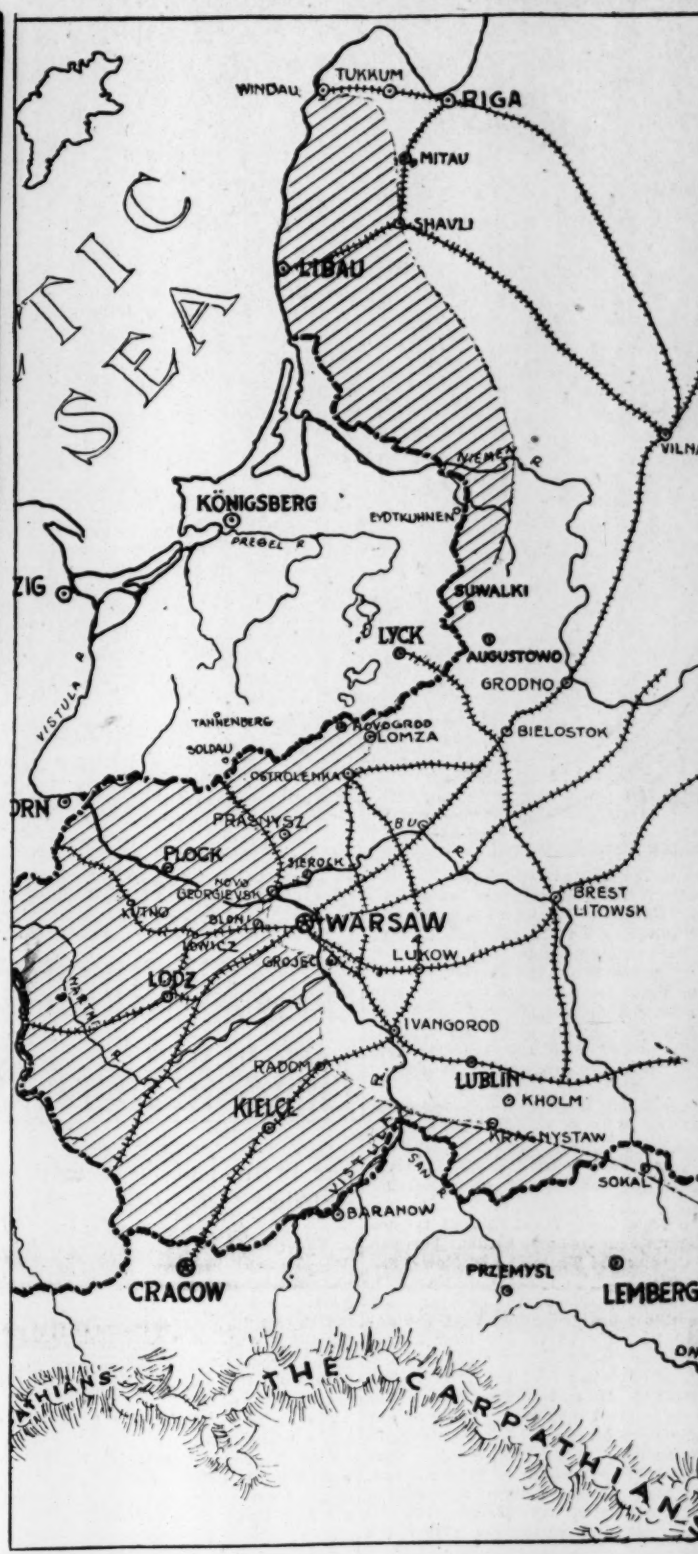

The Germans are within 35 miles of Riga. Possession of Riga by the Germans would force the Russian armies near Shavli and Mitau to retreat, as the Baltic port is their chief point of supplies. The ambitious advance of the Germans in the Baltic provinces indicates they hope not only to capture Warsaw, but to cut off the retreat of the Russians by placing forces between the retreating armies and Petrograd.

All these late advances place Grand Duke Nicholas, the Russian Commander in Chief, in an embarrassing position. To risk obstinate resistance might imperil his retreat, but it is pointed out here that such an extended Austro-German line may contain weak points.

The German official statement of yesterday records the progress of the German troops toward Riga, then, following the acute peril to Warsaw is accentuated by the Russian official communication, which says German columns are within artillery range of the fortress of Novo Georgievsk, the key to the capital from the northwest and only about 30 miles from it.

Immediately southwest of the city and less than 20 miles from it, Blonie has fallen, and farther south Grojec. The Lublin-Chelm Railway still is in the hands of the Russians so far as is known, but the town of Lublin either has been captured or is in danger of falling into the grip of the Austro-Germans, the Russian Commander in Chief

If the Germans can capture Riga and Shavli, they will come into possession of a vast network of railroads (indicated by long jagged lines) which have their heads in those cities. A glance at the map will show the tremendous advantage they will have with these in their possession. The Russians south and east of Riga will be in danger of being outflanked clear to the Galician region, and Russia could scarcely hope to hold Warsaw longer even if that city should be in her hands at the fall of Riga. The shaded portion represents Russian territory in German hands.

CHAUFFEUR HELD FOR KILLING OF STREET CLEANER

Coroner's Jury Returns Verdict of Carelessness Against Jesse Reiff.

A verdict that the carelessness of Jesse Reiff, a chauffeur, of 310 Connecticut street, caused the death of Frank Zachar, 70 years old, a street cleaner, was returned by a coroner's jury today.

Zachar was knocked down and killed by a motor delivery wagon driven by Reiff at Sidney street and Ohio avenue Monday afternoon.

Six witnesses testified that the automobile was going at high speed and that the horn was not sounded until the machine was within two feet of Zachar. After being struck, Zachar landed on the radiator of the machine, the witnesses said, and after being carried 20 feet he dropped off and the machine ran over him and was not stopped until it had gone an additional 20 feet.

On advice of his attorney, Reiff refused to make a statement at the inquest. He is free under a common law bond.

NEW VIOLATION OF U. S. RIGHTS TO BE HELD 'UNFRIENDLY'

Note Will Inform Germany
That Further Loss of Americans in Submarine Warfare Will Be Regarded as Unfriendly Act.

View Taken That Berlin
Has Accepted Principle
That Passengers Must Be Taken Off Ships.

Demand for Reparation for Deaths of Americans on the Lusitania Expected to Be Renewed.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 21.—The United States has decided to inform Germany that further loss of American lives as the result of German submarine warfare in contravention of the principles of international law will be regarded as an "unfriendly act." The discussion of principles is virtually ended. The American Government will now warn Germany of the interpretation it will place on future transgressions of American rights.

In the new note the United States assumes that Germany already has admitted the principle that passengers must be removed to a place of safety before destroying an unresisting merchantman as "prize." Taking the position, therefore, that the two Governments are agreed in principle, the United States views it as incumbent upon Germany to make her submarine practice conform with the accepted principles of international law. Any deviation in actual practice resulting in the loss of American lives, it is then pointed out, will be viewed as an unfriendly act.

The action which the United States might subsequently take is not indicated, but in diplomatic usage, the phrase "unfriendly act" always has carried with it an implication of finally leading off to a severance of friendly relations.

Officials generally were secretive concerning the treatment of the Lusitania case in the new note, but it was believed the request for reparation would be renewed and this issue kept before the two Governments.

The note will reject Germany's proposals that American vessels be given complete immunity when not carrying contraband and for the transfer to American registry of four belligerent vessels for transatlantic traffic provided they did not carry contraband.

Again the American Government will reiterate its willingness to act as an intermediary in adjusting the interests of belligerents on the high seas, but will make it clear that so far as American rights are concerned, they are not to be confounded with the practices of reprisals of one belligerent against another.

The note probably will be finished tomorrow or Friday. Officials believed today it would be unnecessary to discuss it at another Cabinet meeting, and predicted the note would be on its way to Berlin by Friday at the latest.

Dispatches Concerning Note Printed in Berlin Without Comment.

BERLIN, July 21 (By wires to Sayville)—German papers print and comment letters and press dispatches concerning President Wilson's forthcoming note to Germany on submarine warfare. Occasionally a paper remarks that the world is gradually becoming accustomed to the attempts of the British press to act as America's mentor and prescribe for the President the tone and text of his notes.

DR. HILL DEFENDS CURATORS' COURSE AT ROLLA SCHOOL

Points Out at City Club That Legislature Provided No Funds for New Courses.

DENIES ANY "TRICKERY"

Argues in Favor of Plan to Transfer Entire School of Mines to Columbia.

A. Ross Hill, president of the University of Missouri, at Columbia, in a luncheon talk before the City Club today, defended the action of the University's Board of Curators in disregarding, thus far, some of the provisions of the Buford act, passed by the last Legislature. This act specified that the School of Mines at Rolla, a detached department of the university, should henceforth confer degrees in electrical, mechanical and chemical engineering, and that courses leading to these degrees should be in-rolled and announced.

Dr. Hill pointed out that the Legislature made no appropriation for carrying out these requirements, and he asked how an institution without a professor of electrical engineering could confer a degree in that branch.

"The board of curators," he said, "decided not to perpetrate a fraud by inviting students to go to Rolla in the hope of getting what was not to be had there."

He said the board had been advised by an attorney that the Buford act was unconstitutional. As this question is now before the Supreme Court, he said he would not discuss it at length. But he remarked that if the curators could be required, by a legislative act, to confer degrees in electrical engineering at Rolla, they could also be required to give the degree of bachelor of arts to graduates of the law school, or the degree of bachelor of agriculture to graduates of the School of Journalism.

Dr. Hill declared he and the curators favored the removal of the School of Mines to Columbia, but not until the State was ready to use the Rolla buildings for a large new institution for industrial education. This institution, he said, would be somewhat on the line of the Rankin Trades School, in St. Louis, and he predicted that it would be of much more advantage to Rolla than the School of Mines now is.

Favors Such an Institution. He presented arguments in favor of the establishment at Rolla of such an institution, for which, he said, the present buildings would serve. He said the suggestion was introduced at one time by the Mayor of Rolla, but not until men there, but that instead of supporting legislation to that end the members of the Legislature from that section supported the Buford act.

Dr. Hill said there were 30 counties in Southern Missouri from which students could reach Rolla more conveniently than Columbia. Last year, he said, the School of Mines enrolled seven students from those 30 counties.

Wabash Railroad Sold at Auction for $18,000,000

was forced into receivership. The company failed in 1914 and was in the hands of a receiver until 1917, when it was reorganized.

The road again went into a receivership in 1931, after expending large sums to acquire lines which gave it a through route between St. Louis and Detroit. This receivership lasted until 1933, when there was another reorganization.

The Wabash Railroad Co. for the third time, went into the hands of receivers on Dec. 18, 1911. The receivers were appointed on petition of the Westinghouse Air Brake Co., which had a claim of $18,000 against the railroad.

On Jan. 1, 1912, obligations totaling $1,380,000 were due, and inability to provide for these and other payments brought on the receivership. When the road went into bankruptcy it was stated that the primary cause of the failure was the liability of the Wabash for a $9,000,000 note issued by the Wheeling & Lake Erie, a Wabash connection into Pittsburgh. Interest in excess of $800,000 was due on this note on Feb. 1, 1912.

The receivership proceedings were brought after several months had been spent in an effort to put the property on a sound basis. The receivers, during their control of the road, put it in first-class condition physically.

Definite plans for the reorganization of the road were made in the spring of 1914, and in May of that year a detailed plan of reorganization was submitted to the Public Service Commission.

Writer's Wife Who Says She Sold His Books to Get Money

MRS. HARRY S. TURNER.

Declarer That if She Had Broken a Chair One of Family Would Have Had to Stand Up.

Mrs. Harry S. Turner, of 506A Delmar boulevard, whom the editor of the fortnightly Much Ado is suing for divorce, told a Post-Dispatch reporter yesterday something of her married life with Turner, and replied to charges made in his divorce petition. Through a delay in service, she received the petition only two days ago, though it was filed June 28.

She was seen at the office of her lawyer, William S. Connor, where she called to ask whether anything could be done toward getting the divorce from Turner while the suit is pending. She said she was about to be evicted from her Delmar boulevard flat, and that a time payment house was threatening daily to take away the furniture.

"The wagon will only need to make one trip to take away all the furniture there is in that place," she remarked. "There was $250 worth, and I see Harry's things in his petition. I broke some of that. If I had broken one chair while he was at home, one of us would have had to stand up. That's how much furniture there was in that room."

Never Read His "Much Ado." Mrs. Turner made the startling admission that she had never read Much Ado, which her husband founded last spring. She said she had looked inside a copy of it, but "I never looked inside a copy of it," she remarked. "Harry always said he didn't want a literary person for a wife. He never talked over with me what I was going to write, and he never showed me what he had written. He told me he was the greatest writer that had lived in the last 100 years."

"I did read some of the things he wrote before we were married, that were signed 'M. Evelyn Bradley.' That was said to be my name. I want to explain that. My name was Martha Lynch Bradley. The only person who ever called me Evelyn was Harry. You know his name was Harry, and the names of a certain Harry and Evelyn were very well known to the public."

"My first husband was John D. Kerr, and we were divorced in St. Louis in May, 1913. Harry and I were married at New Albany, Ind., my home town, in October, 1913, and took our honeymoon journey on the Mississippi River, going to New Orleans. When we got back here I expected Harry to introduce me to some of the people he knew. But he wouldn't, and he even insisted on keeping our marriage secret for a while."

"As he didn't provide me with acquaintances I thought he should not object to some of my own former acquaintances coming to my car—but he wouldn't. I told him I was a friend of mine called Harry ordered her out. He charges in his petition that I had objectionable associates, but the fact is that he didn't let me have any associates, and that those I wanted to have were not objectionable."

"He went away once, and as I was without money I sold his books. I don't remember what they all were, but they were sets of Balzac and Sir Walter Scott, and the whole business brought $35 from a secondhand dealer. Maybe he wasn't mad when he got home. Why, look at this place behind my ear—but I'll show that in court, when they get to his allegation about my having an ungovernable temper."

"Once he gave me $100 to buy clothes with, and I was very much 'in' of clothes, and I made the best use I could of the money—bought this suit I am wearing now, among other things. But when I got home with only $5 left out of the $100 he was so enraged that he packed up and went to French Lick, Ind. Later he sent me to go over there, and gave me $35, but I spent quite a little of that money behind my ear. 'I am sorry that Harry charged me with refusing to prepare his meals. I used to prepare nice meals, but most of the time he wouldn't be there to eat them. The money that he spent dining out, and getting no better meals than the ones I cooked at home, would have enabled me to hire a servant. But I never complained to him about not having a housekeeper, wasn't hard, and I'm strong and healthy."

"Harry took most of his things away from the flat, but he left two paintings there, and I may have to sell them. One of them is worth $800, according to an artist who saw it some time ago."

MRS. TURNER TELLS OF HER TROUBLES AS HARRY'S WIFE

Declarer That if She Had Broken a Chair One of Family Would Have Had to Stand Up.

Mrs. Harry S. Turner, of 506A Delmar boulevard, whom the editor of the fortnightly Much Ado is suing for divorce, told a Post-Dispatch reporter yesterday something of her married life with Turner, and replied to charges made in his divorce petition. Through a delay in service, she received the petition only two days ago, though it was filed June 28.

She was seen at the office of her lawyer, William S. Connor, where she called to ask whether anything could be done toward getting the divorce from Turner while the suit is pending. She said she was about to be evicted from her Delmar boulevard flat, and that a time payment house was threatening daily to take away the furniture.

"The wagon will only need to make one trip to take away all the furniture there is in that place," she remarked. "There was $250 worth, and I see Harry's things in his petition. I broke some of that. If I had broken one chair while he was at home, one of us would have had to stand up. That's how much furniture there was in that room."

Never Read His "Much Ado." Mrs. Turner made the startling admission that she had never read Much Ado, which her husband founded last spring. She said she had looked inside a copy of it, but "I never looked inside a copy of it," she remarked. "Harry always said he didn't want a literary person for a wife. He never talked over with me what I was going to write, and he never showed me what he had written. He told me he was the greatest writer that had lived in the last 100 years."

"I did read some of the things he wrote before we were married, that were signed 'M. Evelyn Bradley.' That was said to be my name. I want to explain that. My name was Martha Lynch Bradley. The only person who ever called me Evelyn was Harry. You know his name was Harry, and the names of a certain Harry and Evelyn were very well known to the public."

"My first husband was John D. Kerr, and we were divorced in St. Louis in May, 1913. Harry and I were married at New Albany, Ind., my home town, in October, 1913, and took our honeymoon journey on the Mississippi River, going to New Orleans. When we got back here I expected Harry to introduce me to some of the people he knew. But he wouldn't, and he even insisted on keeping our marriage secret for a while."

"As he didn't provide me with acquaintances I thought he should not object to some of my own former acquaintances coming to my car—but he wouldn't. I told him I was a friend of mine called Harry ordered her out. He charges in his petition that I had objectionable associates, but the fact is that he didn't let me have any associates, and that those I wanted to have were not objectionable."

"He went away once, and as I was without money I sold his books. I don't remember what they all were, but they were sets of Balzac and Sir Walter Scott, and the whole business brought $35 from a secondhand dealer. Maybe he wasn't mad when he got home. Why, look at this place behind my ear—but I'll show that in court, when they get to his allegation about my having an ungovernable temper."

"Once he gave me $100 to buy clothes with, and I was very much 'in' of clothes, and I made the best use I could of the money—bought this suit I am wearing now, among other things. ## PEACE IS REMOTE, PRESIDENT IS TOLD BY IANE ADDAMS

No Possibility of War Ending in Immediate Future, She Believes.

WASHINGTON, July 21.—President Wilson was told today by Miss Jane Addams, representing the Women's Peace Conference, which recently met at the Hague, that she saw no possibility for peace in Europe in the immediate future.

Accompanied by Miss Lillian D. Wald of New York, Miss Addams passed more than an hour with the President and came home with a detailed account of confidential talks she had with high officials in Europe. Afterwards, she said, she had not tried to interpret the views of those officials, but had sought to give the President an inside view of the European situation as she had found it.

President Deeply Interested. The President and Miss Addams many questions and showed deep interest in the information she brought in. In a general way her facts agreed with information brought by Col. E. M. House and other close friends, who have been keeping the President informed of the European situation. Miss Addams made no prediction as to the probable duration of the war, and presented no peace plans.

"I understand that Holland and other neutral nations have offered to mediate between the warring nations," said Miss Addams, "and Pope Benedict also is anxious to do something. What will come of these offers and of the offer of the United States I cannot predict at this time."

In addition to her own statement, Miss Addams laid before the President a written report of delegates to the Women's Peace Conference, who visited officials in Northern Europe. The situation in those countries will be laid directly before the President later in the week by Mrs. Nelson Morris, American Ambassador to Sweden, who conferred with Secretary Lansing today. He is home on leave for an operation.

small office building of the Tidewater company was discovered in flames and the building was virtually destroyed before the fire could be controlled. The origin of the fire is unknown. This afternoon the Standard Oil officials landed 200 men from tug boats at the plant, presumably deputies, who will assist in guarding the works.

General Manager Gifford of the plant repeated today his statement that the company would listen to another request or demand of its employees, but had received none. The strike, he said, had been fomented by outsiders.

Seventy-five deputy sheriffs, 150 special policemen and a large squad of Bayonne police guarded the plant, which was closed yesterday, after a strike of several hundred employees, followed by riots. Between 500 and 600 men are thrown out of work.

The strikers issued a statement saying that they had gone out only to obtain better working conditions and to enable themselves to educate their children.

CHARGE MADE OF FRAUD IN BOND ELECTION IN COUNTY

Voters' League of Consolidated Ritenour School District Securing Affidavits and Will Ask Prosecutor to Act.

A demand will be made upon Prosecutor Ralph of St. Louis County by the Voters' League of the Consolidated Ritenour School District, for a grand jury investigation of a bond election at Overland Park, Mo., at which bonds amounting to $25,000 were declared to have been passed.

The executive committee of the League held a meeting last night at the residence of the president, W. S. Robinson, in Overland Park, and received reports that a partial canvass of the district revealed that 36 voters had signed their willingness to make affidavits that they had voted against the bond issue. The election returns, as cast by the judges and clerks of election, indicated that 183 voters had been cast for the bond issue and only 87 against it, being slightly more than the necessary two-thirds majority in favor of the bonds.

Committees of citizens have been busy for two weeks obtaining the affidavits of voters who cast their votes against the bond issue. The committee received reports last night that 60 or 80 voters had signed their affidavits. When the affidavits of the voters who have expressed a willingness to make them have been obtained, they will be laid before Prosecuting Attorney Ralph, with a request for a thorough investigation.

Bonds Sold Immediately. The Voters' League complains that the board of directors of the school district held a meeting within two hours after the polls closed and sold the bond issue to James G. Cahill of St. Louis at a total premium of $68. The only other bidder for the bonds was the Overland State Bank of Overland Park, which offered a premium of $60 for the bonds.

Officials of the Voters' League assert that the bid of the bank was illegal because C. Reimann, its president, is a member of the School Board. Under the law, as interpreted by the judges, no member of the School Board has any right to have any business dealings with the board.

Another source of complaint on the part of the Voters' League was the employment by the School Board of Clarence Campbell, a Republican politician, as trustee officer at a salary of $50 a month. The district has never before employed a trustee officer.

The Executive Committee of the league is comprised of W. S. Robinson, William Mahne, J. R. Roux, Frank Win-

erton, Frank Spencer, Eugene Wur-

jack, W. H. Williams, Gus E. Harold Lane and Charles J. Orment. A meeting of the entire membership of the league, which the officials say is more than 100, will be held at the residence of Spencer on the Leckland road, Aug. 2, to consider further plans for prosecuting the investigation.

Bailouts Under Lock and Key. G. M. Ringen, secretary of the Ritenour School Board, who is a clerk at the Third National Bank, told a Post-Dispatch reporter today that he had not heard of the complaints that had been made by the Voters' League. He said that he had the ballots cast at the election under lock and key, and that he would deliver them to the Prosecuting Attorney for investigation, if a demand should be made upon him by the proper legal authority.

Ringen and W. L. Howe, another member of the board, admitted that the School Board had a meeting immediately after the election and authorized the sale of the bonds to Cahill. Howe declared that there were several bidders besides Cahill and the Overland Bank, but Ringen said that Cahill

Becker, Appealing to Governor to Save Him, Gives New Version of Rosenthal Murder

"BIG TIM" SULLIVAN, HE SAYS, FEARING EXPOSURE, PLANNED TO SEND HIM AWAY

ROSENTHAL SHOT WHEN WAITING AT HOTEL FOR MONEY

Former Lieutenant Says He Knew Nothing of Plan to Kill Gambler — He Has Kept Silent to Protect His Friend, He Declares — Attorneys Announce They Will Seek New Trial on Ground of Newly Discovered Evidence.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 21.—Counsel for Charles Becker, former Lieutenant of Police, whose execution is set for July 28 for the murder of Herman Rosenthal, the gambler, awaited today the result of Becker's appeal to Gov. Whitman.

Becker's plea was handed to the Governor's secretary today by John B. Johnston, partner of Martin T. Manton, Becker's counsel. The Governor said he would make no statement until he could examine the document, which included a long statement of Becker's version of the facts leading up to the murder. In this statement Becker denied complicity in the murder. Becker said that State Senator Timothy D. ("Big Tim") Sullivan, now dead, had told him that he had $12,500 invested in Rosenthal's gambling house and that, when Rosenthal began to make public statements about the raids on his place, Sullivan exacted a promise from Becker to keep Sullivan's name out of it. Becker said that he kept his promise up to the time of the making of his plea for executive clemency.

Becker's statement made no disclosure of police graft but gave an account of his movements on the night of the murder.

Martin H. Manton of Becker's counsel has announced that proceedings will be started in a day or two in application for a new trial for Becker on the grounds of newly discovered evidence. The nature of the evidence was not disclosed. It was reported that friends of Sullivan have offered to make affidavits substantiating in part the story which Becker told.

W. Bourke Cockran, one of Becker's attorneys, who prepared a portion of the statement to the Governor, said it had been decided to take this action in order to avoid a delay in first appealing to a supreme court justice for a new trial. "Becker is ready to die. He has not asked favors of anyone, but he wants to prove his innocence," Cockran said.

Story in Own Handwriting. Becker's statement, done in his own handwriting, is a chronological history told in plain language of what he says were his dealings with Rosenthal and the others mentioned in the murder case. This communication was accompanied by a copy of the argument used by Bourke Cockran before United States Supreme Court Justice Hughes for a writ of error. The latter document was included in the documents sent to the Governor in order that he might know the grounds on which Cockran sought a writ of error.

Becker says it is common report that a sum of money was raised, presumably by Rose, from the gamblers to get Rosenthal away. Rosenthal refused the sum offered but consented to go for a larger sum. It is said that it was for this larger sum that he was waiting at the Hotel Metropole when he was shot. Becker adds that if it could be shown that Rose had been entrusted with a sum of money to be given Rosenthal it would shed a flood of light on the whole transaction and would explain the source of $1000 which Rose admitted had been paid to the gunman.

The statement is accompanied by a supplemental document framed by Becker, and really a part of his story, but revised somewhat by his attorneys. In this second statement the condemned man declares at one point that, if he is to die, he is as ready now to meet his fate as he has any reason to think he ever will be. He adds that there is only one service that can be rendered him, and that is aid in finding evidence which will establish his innocence, and continues:

Association With Jack Rose. Becker explains his associations with Jack Rose by stating that his "only interest was in maintaining Rose's usefulness as a stool pigeon in securing evidence against gambling houses. He tells of the partnership existing between Rose and Rosenthal in a gambling house until after they had a difference and became enemies. It was with this gambling house that Becker connects the name of "Big Tim" Sullivan. Becker makes it plain that he did not understand at any time that Sullivan was Rosenthal's partner, but that the Senator simply had loaned Rosenthal money with which to equip the gambling house.

After Rosenthal's place had been closed, the gambler published an article charging that Becker was the real owner of a chattel mortgage on the gambler's furniture. Becker declares he had little fear of this charge, but that Senator Sullivan, fearing the possible results of Rosenthal's campaign, called Becker into a conference which Rose attended, and said that Rosenthal must be induced to leave town.

Becker declared that this could not be done, as it was necessary to his position in the Police Department that Rosenthal's statements be faced and disproved. To this he said Sullivan replied:

"Where a fire of this kind started there is no knowing where it will reach. Rosenthal has already been very close to me politically and personally, and once inquiries start they reach into election matters. Any secret investigations of elections by grand juries have always been sources of great trouble."

Attitude Was Appreciated. Becker replied that so far as he was concerned, Rosenthal's disappearance what he said. I considered this a presumption, and told Rosenthal to ask Sullivan for the information he wanted, whereupon Rosenthal said, "I'll show you he is my friend," and drew a paper from his pocket which Rosenthal said was a note for $500. I saw it was signed "T. D. Sullivan."

"This note, Rosenthal said, he was going to have discounted by a friend or relative named Immerman, in the New York World Building. I told Rosenthal that I would open his gambling house, I was afraid Rose was trying to find out what Tim said to me, and then tell Tim and make Sullivan distrust me."

Told Rose to See Tim.

"About a week or two after this meeting with Tim, Rose came and asked me if I had seen 'Tim.' I told him I had. Rose then asked me if Sullivan had told him Rosenthal could open his gambling house. I was afraid Rose was trying to find out what Tim said to me, and then tell Tim and make Sullivan distrust me."

"Then Rose told me that Rosenthal told him that Tim had fixed it with Waldo to get the balance of his loan of $1500 out of 'Big Tim.' Rose said the house still owed him about $200 or $400, and asked me to wait a few days until he could get the balance of his loan of $1500 out."

"I told Rose it would take me some time to get the evidence unless he helped me by giving me information as to how my men could get in. Rose said he would help me, and told me of a stevedore named Hawks who made the Metropole Hotel his headquarters, a waiter in the same hotel, and a man named Smith, who could be found at the Hotel Cadillac. Rose told me that Rosenthal had been seen by him in court the time I raided him (Rose)."

Plan for the Raid. "I asked Rose how we would manage to get White in and Rose said that if he would let him know to Rosenthal's he—Rose—would go to Luchow's on 14th street and telephone to Rosenthal to meet him there. In the interim my men could get in. This Rose did and it worked like a charm. My men got in on the 18th or 19th of April and on the 17th I sent them to get warrants from Magistrate McAdoo. I knew McAdoo and Larry Mulligan were friends and I feared a leak might occur by which Rosenthal would learn of the intended raid and perhaps move his gambling fixtures out and then claim I had no evidence as there was no gambling furniture on the premises when I raided and then cry I framed him up. To avoid this danger I had Rose meet me at the Union Square Hotel and I told him I had the warrants and too. Waldo then said he wanted Rosenthal closed. "I took this with a grain of salt, as I thought Waldo wanted to be in position—in the event Rosenthal talked of Tim's part in it—that he, Waldo, had ordered me to close it. I decided to wait for further orders before acting. In a week or 10 days Waldo asked me what I had done to close Rosenthal. He must close."

"I then decided to put it up to Waldo and told him that I heard 'Big Tim' was backing Rosenthal. I did this to see if Waldo was sincere. When I told Waldo this, he said it made no difference who backed Rosenthal, he must close."

"Waldo then took a letter from his desk and told me to read it, and said he had sent a copy of it to Inspector Hays. The letter was to the effect that if he—Hays—did not close Rosenthal within 10 days he would cease to be an inspector of police. I then told Waldo that if my raiding of Rosenthal made the reduction of Inspector Hays I wished he would keep me out of the thing. Waldo then said he would not reduce Hays, but would transfer all his plain clothes men to Sullivan."

"Inspector Hays told me that he had sent $152 in trying to get evidence against Rosenthal. If Hays told me the truth the department records will show it."

At This Time I Told Waldo of Rosenthal's penchant for making trouble for all the police who had raided him, and I cited the cases of Patrolmen Cody and Long, and of Capt. Beutler. I told Waldo that I wanted to get as many men in Rosenthal's house as possible to make sure that Rosenthal couldn't cry 'frame up,' as I felt sure he would do in event of only one man getting in. I told him that I had done in all his previous troubles."

"I asked Waldo to transfer Patrolman Shepard—a new man—to my squad. This Waldo did, on the 11th or 13th of April. I then decided to pay no more attention to Sullivan, even though I might be ground between the upper and nether stones. It was just at this juncture Rose showed his antipathy towards Rosenthal owing to the $6000 transaction. I having the order to raid Rosenthal, I sent for Rose and asked him if he would like to get even with Rosenthal."

"Rose asked me if I had an order to raid Rosenthal. I told him I had. Rose became very angry and said he had an order to raid Rosenthal, but he would not only cheat him, but had also told him about the alleged protection he had from 'Big Tim.' Rose said the house still owed him about $200 or $400, and asked me to wait a few days until he could get the balance of his loan of $1500 out."

Rose said he would help me, and told me of a stevedore named Hawks who made the Metropole Hotel his headquarters, a waiter in the same hotel, and a man named Smith, who could be found at the Hotel Cadillac. I knew McAdoo and Larry Mulligan were friends and I feared a leak might occur by which Rosenthal would learn of the intended raid and perhaps move his gambling fixtures out and then claim I had no evidence as there was no gambling furniture on the premises when I raided and then cry I framed him up. To avoid this danger I had Rose meet me at the Union Square Hotel and I told him I had the warrants and

In regard to Rosenthal opening his gambling house or his bringing me to see him.

"Applebaum said he was going to get permission to visit Rose, Webber and Vallon in the Tombs on Sunday, July 25 to find out if they would involve Big Tim and wanted to be assured again that if they didn't I wouldn't either. Applebaum asked me where he could meet me Sunday night. I told him to come to the station house, as I was on desk duty. Applebaum did not want to do this, saying it might show connection between Tim and me and I.

"I told him he could meet me at 131st street and Amsterdam avenue at 1:30 a. m., Monday, July 29. This he did. Applebaum told me he had seen Rose, Webber and Vallon, and that they said they would protect Tim. I then said I would not mention Tim either in relation to the opening of Rosenthal's house."

"I left him and went home at 9 a. m. Monday. I went in reserve at sixty-fifth Precinct, took desk at 5 p. m. and was arrested at 8:30 p. m. I must admit that all I did by way of making raids was done under explicit orders from Waldo. I had no say as to who was to be raided."

Second Statement. In the second statement, edited by Bourke Cockran, Becker tells the Governor the previous statement was intended for use only after his death, but that it was sent to him in full because of the misleading statements published in papers Monday and Tuesday. This statement is more of a legal argument than a statement of facts, and it goes over the same ground as the one prepared by Becker himself, but in a more concise way, setting out motives and drawing conclusions for the various acts by Rose, all pointing to the fact that Rose was double-crossing everyone with whom he was associated from start to finish.

For instance, a point is made that Rose claimed to have secured a half interest in Rosenthal's $12,500 gambling house for $1500, and the inference suggested that Rose was able to secure this "bargain" through Rosenthal's expectation of the connection would save the house from being raided as a result of the relationship between Becker and Rose. The opening part of this section reviews the anomalous position of Becker in having to go for the last review of his case to a Governor who, as District Attorney, prosecuted him. This part of the statement reads as follows:

"It is indeed true that under the constitution of this State before a man convicted of a capital offense can be actually put to death it is his right to have all the proceedings through which his conviction was secured reviewed by an independent and impartial mind occupying the executive chair. Even though the judgment has been affirmed by every branch of the judicial department, it still remains the duty of the executive to decide whether, considering the character of the witnesses who testified on the trial, the manner of conducting it or for any reason whatever, the sentence against him shall be executed, modified or entirely remitted."

Position of the Governor. "But the degree to which I can enjoy this right which the Constitution undertakes to bestow on me is so well stated in an editorial printed last Saturday by the prominent newspaper of New York City that the article is herewith transcribed:

"WHITMAN AND BECKER. "Should the innocence of even partial innocence of Charles A. Becker be demonstrated by a John Doe or any other legal proceeding, the position of Gov. Whitman will be most extraordinary. The Governor's entire political standing is based upon the convictions in the Rosenthal murder case. His uncompromising determination to see the culprit punished, and above all Becker, to the electric chair is the very stuff of which his reputation as an unflinching public servant and an antagonist of evil is made."

up. It was the second conviction of Becker that made him Governor. It would be most painful for him and his admirers to discover now that he had been the victim of blind zeal and misinformed prejudice. We refuse to give credence to such a theory without overwhelming proof."

"I beg you to believe that this language is not quoted for any other reason than it shows with a clearness which I could not command (and give a frankness which perhaps might not be seeming in me) that any review by the executive of the evidence given against me or of the manner in which my prosecution was conducted must be the work of a man whose present political eminence is built on my conviction and whose political future must depend on my execution."

"To obviate this condition made possible by a constitutional omission it was suggested to you on my behalf that ex-Chief Justice Andrews of the Court of Appeals or ex-Chief Judge Cullen, or some other citizen of prominent distinction, be invited to examine the record and advise you of the executive's action which, for the credit of the State, should be taken with respect to the sentence of death pronounced on me."

"Even after this proposal had been rejected, I still ventured to hope

His temperature was 100, the lowest since Sunday.

INVENTORIES OF SIX ESTATES $221,761; TAX RETURNS $1120

Valuations Filed Since 49 Other Tax-Dodging Cases Were Listed by Post-Dispatch.

Since the Post-Dispatch, a few weeks ago, published the inventories of 49 estates, and compared the taxable personal property of each estate with the last tax return made by the individual before death, to show the extent of tax dodging in St. Louis, the inventories of six other estates of considerable value have been filed in the Probate Court.

The total value of the taxable personal property of the six estates—bonds, cash, notes, goods and chattels—as shown by the inventories, was $221,761. The tax return on all of this property was $1120, less than one-half of one per cent of the inventoried value of the property.

The par value of the property escaping taxation, belonging to these estates was $221,761. The loss to the city in taxes, on these six estates amounted to more than $5300 a year.

Judge Divall of Richmond, Mo., has succeeded in increasing the personal tax assessments in the three counties comprising his judicial district by more than $5,000,000 by causing grand jury investigations of tax dodging. Circuit Attorney Harvey, Circuit Judge Fisher, who has charge of the grand jury, and the grand jury itself, have declined to make an investigation of tax dodging in St. Louis.

The 49 estates compared by the Post-Dispatch several weeks ago showed an inventory value of $10,534,123 of taxable personal property, and returns aggregating $2,012,590. Nearly $9,000,000 of taxable personal property belonging to these estates had been escaping taxation under the returns made by the owners while they were living. The loss in revenue to the city, on these estates alone, amounted to more than $300,000 a year.

The inventory of every estate filed in the Probate Court since the first record was made up, when compared with the tax returns at the Assessor's office, shows that tax dodging is a general practice. In not a single instance out of the 52 estates compared was there found a return in excess of one-fourth of the real value of the personal property, and in many cases no return whatever was made. Some of the returns listed less than one-hundredth part of the property subject to taxation.

Becker Tells His Story of the Rosenthal Murder

ments to my injury. All the subsequent proceedings as they are set out in the assignments of error were so utterly unfair that they constituted not an impartial trial to determine my guilt or innocence, but a conspiracy to bring about my conviction.

"And counsel advised me that he did not believe the Supreme Court would ever render a decision condemning so sweepingly and seriously the entire judicial process of a State. As this question, however, is entirely new, he thought it possible that a writ might be issued out of the United States District Court and perhaps even a stay of execution might be granted pending decision by the Supreme Court. But as the only effect of this would be to delay death for a few months, I have instructed him not to make the application.

Appeal to the Governor. "Although it involves the unprecedented (perhaps some would say preposterous) proceeding of asking his excellency, Charles S. Whitman, Governor of the State, to review, reverse and in some respects condemn the conduct of Hon. Charles S. Whitman, District Attorney of New York County, in prosecuting an indictment for murder against me, nevertheless, that my constitutional rights may be at least asserted. I ask your excellency most respectfully on the record submitted to Mr. Justice Hughes for forbidding execution of the capital sentence pronounced on me.

"I ask your excellency further, in the light of certain facts, now disclosed for the first time, to forbid my execution, on the ground that my guilt of this murder is not established so clearly as to justify the taking of a human life by the public executioner. Here, sir, let me say that I do not ask any indulgence at your hands.

"If I have actually committed the crime of which I have been found guilty, no criminal ever went to execution who more thoroughly deserved the punishment inflicted on him.

"I was an officer of the law, and as such I was equipped with extraordinary power for the safety of life and property. I have really and in fact abused these powers conferred on me for the protection of life by perverting them to accomplish the destruction of life, then, indeed, I am doubly guilty. To the heinous crime of murdering a fellow being I have added a species of treason against the community. To a criminal so depraved I freely concede there could be neither warrant nor justification for clemency.

"Moreover, if I were given the choice between dying a felon's death in the electric chair and living a felon's life in a prison cell, I should certainly not be inclined to prefer the longer, over the shorter agony. But I do revolt from being forced to bear, living or dead, the stigma of murder. I do not deserve the infamy. I am innocent as you of having murdered morals to place you in possession of every fact within my knowledge which might throw any light on the commission of this murder. This done, my duty will have been performed. The action you then take will be between your conscience and yourself. Your power is unlimited—and so is your responsibility."

The statement goes into more detail of the alleged connection between Tim Sullivan and Rosenthal.

He refers to his statement to Sullivan that it was necessary to his position in the department that Rosenthal's statements be faced and disproved. "This I was prepared to do," Becker continues.

"I don't know whether the Senator actually mentioned the troubles that had overwhelmed one of his predecessors, Patrick Dwyer, many years ago, or whether it simply occurred to me, but I do recall having said, 'As to the political side of it, Senator, I have no opinion at all. But I am perfectly clear that so far as I am concerned, his disappearance would be fatal if it would be suspected that I had connived at it.'

Important to Health During Hot Weather

Summer Conditions Contribute in Various Ways to Constipation.

At no time should people be more careful of the condition of their bowels than during the hot weather. Constipation should be guarded against, especially, as many serious, and often fatal, diseases are traceable to neglect.

Some people find that certain fruits have a laxative effect, but this cannot always be depended upon; a mild laxative-remedy that will act gently, yet positively, without griping or shock to the system, is far preferable. A combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin, sold in drug stores under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is highly recommended as being easy and natural in its action, pleasant to the taste and certain in its effect. A dose of this excellent remedy at bedtime will restore normal activity in the morning, carrying off the heavy-ness and bloat. Salts, purgatives and cathartics should be avoided, as they upset the entire system, and at best afford but temporary relief. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is not expensive and can be obtained in any drug store for fifty cents a bottle. For a free trial bottle, write to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 453 Washington St., Monticello, Ill.

AMERICAN MEMBER OF FOREIGN LEGION DESCRIBES BATTLE

Connecticut Man, Wounded, Writes to Comrade in Hospital of Fighting at Arras.

PARIS, July 21.—The following letter was written by Paul Pavella, an American in the First Regiment of the Foreign Legion, which has seen much hot fighting north of Arras, to Kiffin Rockwell, a brother volunteer, who is in a hospital at Rennes from a wound received in an earlier fight. The writer, who was born in Connecticut, and was a sailor before he enlisted, was known to his company as "the Skipper." San Francisco had been his usual headquarters. In a postcard written before the letter he spoke of his wound as a bayonet wound.

"Auxiliary Hospital No. 3, 'Gogent-le-Rotier.' 'Having at last found a bed in this hospital and resting tranquil I will let you know of my experiences since the beginning of the operations of June 15. The attack began at noon and was led by the Moroccan division, as on May 9. Battalion B let go first in our sector, facing a most terrible fire of machine-guns, rifle and shrapnel. The only thing for us to do was to cover the ground as quickly as possible, which we did, reaching the first 'Boche' trench to find that they had fallen back to their second line.

"Head Over Heels Into Trenches. 'We took a short rest here, rallying, as many of our boys fell on the way over. The Greeks were behind us and soon came piling head over heels into the trenches we were in. Everything was mixed up from now on, as there were two battalions, C and B, in the short space of about 300 yards. 'The next move was even more difficult, for the Germans kept up a most brilliant rifle and artillery fire to keep our reserves from coming up. Nevertheless out of the trenches we climbed and headed for Trench No. 2 as quickly as possible. Here I got separated from the company, Nemorin and I being together. He soon got a bullet in the side, so I laid him in a Marmite (big shell) hole and pushed on. How many times I had to lie down I could not say, but eventually I managed to reach that dear old second line.

"Some surprise was in store for me. As I reached the edge of the trench I noticed the gray cape of the Bavarians and almost at once I felt a stinging pain shoot through my left leg. I had got mine and dropped just in front of the trench. The next was a miscalculation of howling and hurrahing, for Traillera, Zouaves and the Legion were all piling in on them. It was soon over, the Germans getting out and running for their lives toward the rear without any arms. I got into the trench now and the rest went on. The blood ran freely from my wound and I put on a first aid bandage.

"As I lay there I saw many wounded coming in and also many prisoners. I looked out of the trenches and could see our boys slowly gaining Hill 119, directly in front of me. It was easy to distinguish them, all having a piece of white cloth pinned on their backs without haversacks. 'Makes Way to Rear Unaided. 'I made my way to the rear unaided and reached the first aid post, where I got a wagon to Camblin Abbey. There I saw Larsen, with his jaw shot away; Zannis, the Turk, with his hips torn off by a piece of shell, and others of our company. I heard that our Captain was killed and that Kelly, 'Red-Smitty,' was wounded, but I do not know how true it may be.

"This is a nice hospital, very nice people, many of them speaking enough English to make things easy. I got a horse on you, though, for I had 10 packets of tobacco in my sack when you only had six. Well, you lost yours, and so did I. But I should worry. I guess I shall find some more tobacco and pass some day before long. Well, keep up your courage and get well again, so that we can go back and pay them back in full."

The letter incidentally illustrates the mixed nationalities found in the Foreign Legion. The Greeks have been enlisted by thousands. More than 6000 have come from Greece to join the French army, many being experienced soldiers. Nemorin, mentioned in the letter, is a Hindu, who has studied at Oxford.

Edwin Kelly and C. Smith, reported as wounded, are both New Yorkers, the former being the son of a lawyer there, the latter having seen service in the Philippines.

There were other Americans at this regiment who, as far as is known, were not wounded. End Sub-Weeks and Sun-Week, a New York electrical engineer.

STRIKING WELSH COAL MINERS GO BACK TO WORK

Increased Wage Agreement Reached; Lloyd George Talks to Men.

LONDON, July 21.—The South Wales coal miners have accepted the terms agreed upon yesterday and the strike is therefore definitely at an end. Throughout the coal fields there was an overwhelming majority in favor of the settlement.

The terms arrived at grant a substantial increase in wages which are considered by their Executive Committee as tantamount to an admission of the miners' claim on nearly all the outstanding points. David Lloyd George's arrival here Monday night paved the way for breaking the deadlock between the miners and the mine owners.

Lloyd-George addressed the miners today, expressing sincere joy that the men had decided to go back to work with him and his colleagues "to fight the common enemy."

He added: "A week of enormous value has been lost to this country. It is only gradually dawning on us how tremendous is the struggle in which we are engaged. Even now I am not sure that we fully realize what will be its effect on the whole course of human affairs. * * * The coal fields of France are now in the hands of the enemy. France depends upon you for coal. Five vessels from France lie in Cardiff Harbor waiting for their bunkers to be filled, and I am going to ask you to make up for lost time and show the democracy of France that you are prepared to assist her in the struggle for the freedom of the world.

"I want you to work, moreover, for the sake of the British navy. Till its bunkers are filled, it means an inviolate Britain, the existence of which makes it impossible for the Germans to despoil the Welsh coal fields as they have the coal fields of France.

"Peace at home is essential. I am sick at heart at the necessity of calling attention to the gravity of the position, but the situation is sufficiently serious to call for the united action of every man and woman in the whole land.

"We have sent the men to the front. Support them. If we do so we shall win a victory for European liberty which will resound through the ages." The miners cheered wildly.

Feet Are Ears for Deaf in Dance.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 21.—A ball in which the dancers could not hear the music was a feature here last night of the convention of the National Association of the Deaf. Most of the dancers, it was explained, caught the vibrations of the music through the floor. Those who could not do this watched the others.

WIFE OF MAN WHO LED DOUBLE LIFE BEGINS MANY SUITS

She Ties Up His Property and Gets Writ That Prevents His Flight.

CHICAGO, July 21.—The two homes of Ralph R. Brumbaugh—the one where his wife lives and the one where he lives and the one where his two children—were imperiled today by a series of legal actions taken by his wife. For seven years Brumbaugh, wealthy furniture dealer, and the little German immigrant girl, Margaret Schuetzel, who is the mother of his children, have prayed that the legal wife would get a divorce so that the Brumbaugh name might be given to the children. For seven years Mrs. Brumbaugh permitted her husband to maintain two homes and to live a dual life but would not divorce him. And now by her latest actions she has threatened the destruction of both homes together.

She has sued her husband, not for divorce, but for a separate maintenance. She sued for an injunction to prevent his disposing of his property and she took out a writ of ne exeat to keep him from fleeing the city. More than that, she laid her case before the Federal authorities with a view to further proceedings which may lead to a Mann act prosecution or to the deportation of the mother of Brumbaugh's children under the immigration laws.

Brumbaugh's Outlook Gloomy.

Brumbaugh has been served with the papers in the various suits. It was on the ne exeat order that he was arrested and taken to jail until he could obtain a $2500 bond. The outlook for him and for the woman he prefers to his wife is gloomy.

Earlier in the day they thought it was bright. But that was when they thought that Mrs. Brumbaugh, in the generous spirit she had shown year after year hitherto, would pave the way to their happiness by suing for divorce. It is said she expected to do so—at a final sacrifice. But at the last minute she failed.

"So she says I stole her husband? absurd, ridiculous. As if any woman can steal a man," said Margaret Schuetzel today. "She is to blame. She knows it. She knew it some years ago. When I went to her home as an immigrant girl still in my teens I soon realized love was a lottery. I soon saw the man held the losing ticket."

"His Life Was Purgatory." "His daily life as I witnessed it, was a continuous purgatory. I sympathized with him. He created sympathy. We soon became friends. This friendship and it was an honorable one, soon ripened into love. This woman was not an infatuation, it was and is the love of a true womanly man. "No one can separate us, no one will. I shall defend him until eternity. Look at those two darling babies. There should be no better evidence of my love for the man I shall always honor and respect."

"And the woman who at the altar said she would be his wife—she now seeks his money. If she really wanted his love she would let it with dollars and cents. Let the public judge by her action of today."

11 INJURED WHEN AUTOS COLLIDE ON OLIVE STREET ROAD

All but One of Those Hurt Were in Family Party on Way to Memorial Services in Jewish Cemetery.

Eleven persons were injured when the automobile of E. J. Musick of North University City collided with that of J. N. Albrecht of 219 Arlington avenue, at Ferguson avenue and Olive street road, yesterday.

Albrecht was driving west on the Olive street road, taking his wife, mother, two sisters, two aunts, two sons and three cousins to Jewish Memorial day services at Chesed Ehel Emmeth cemetery. Musick said he was thrown from his car and cut upon his right shoulder and right leg.

They were Mrs. Ida Albrecht, wife of Albrecht; David and Aaron, his sons; Mrs. Mollie Schrier, 212 Carr street; Sylvia Schrier, Mrs. Dora Albrecht, 218 Carr street; Mrs. Annie Weiss, 214 Carr street; Mrs. Liba Weiss, 207 Carr street, and Sammie Weiss.

U. S. ASKED TO AID ITALIANS

Note Declares That Turks Prevent Their Leaving Asia Minor.

ROME, July 21.—The Government has addressed a note to the United States Government asking it to use its influence to protect Italian subjects in the Ottoman empire, especially in the Minor, where the Turkish authorities are said to be preventing them from leaving.

In the note the Government took the opportunity to express its high satisfaction over the recent efficacious intervention of the commander and officers of the United States cruiser Tennessee, in Asiatic Turkey, to whose firmness, it is asserted, was due the rescue and departure from the country of many Italians.

Fruitola Came to Her Rescue

From her home in Mountain Park, Oklahoma, Mrs. O. A. Strange writes to the Pinus laboratories:

"I am taking Fruitola and Traxo for gallstones with good results. If it had not been that it came to my rescue, I would have been dead I am sure. I cannot say too much for Fruitola and Traxo."

Fruitola possesses properties that act directly upon the intestinal parts. It is a great system cleanser. Traxo is a tonic alternative that acts on the liver and kidneys, stimulates the flow of gastric juices to aid digestion and removes bile from the general circulation. It serves to build up and strengthen the weakened, run-down system.

The Pinus laboratories have many letters on file that testify to the merits of Fruitola and Traxo; letters from people who have used the remedy and know from actual experience what it has done for them.

For the convenience of the public, arrangements have been made to supply Fruitola and Traxo through leading druggists. In St. Louis they can be obtained at Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., 6th and Washington.

Chalmers Six-48 $1550

This Chalmers Owner Did Not Know That He Was Writing This Advertisement

He paid $1650 for the 5-passenger car, about which he is so enthusiastic. This same car with 7-passenger body now sells for $1550.

The letter published below was received in the ordinary course of business on May 22, 1915.

We are publishing it without a change.

New York, May 21, 1915.

Chalmers Motor Co.,
Detroit, Michigan.

Gentlemen:—It seems to me that it would be only fair to the Chalmers Company for me to express my opinion of my car. I have had it long enough to know it thoroughly. The enthusiasm which goes with the purchase of "something new" has had a chance to tone down a bit, and I can now analyze the actions and the general make-up of the car much better than I could during the first days of my possession of it.

A Buyer's Questions

Here are a few things that the buyer of a new car is sure to ask himself:

Could I have purchased a better car for the same or a less amount?

Will it make a hit when I "show it off" to my friends?

Is there anything about it that looks cheap?

Is it comfortable to ride in?

Is the engine quiet?

Will the self-starter always start?

Is it easy to keep going?

Will it "ride the bumps"?

How will the local office handle any "kicks"?

These are not the questions of the technical man nor of the expert automobilist. They are the things that a business man who drives his own car, will ask.

An Owner's Answers

Here are my answers:

I consider the Chalmers Car at $1650, the cheapest buy on the market. In appearance, equipment, make-up, construction, power, flexibility, and comfort, it is, to my way of thinking, superior to cars selling at several hundred dollars more. I have had owners of higher priced cars ride with me and every man has expressed his amazement at the ability of the Chalmers Company to put out such a remarkable car at such a very low price.

I never have to show off my car to my friends. They do the talking for me. They say, "Isn't it a beautiful car?"—what fine lines." One of my associates in business said, "It represents a combination of beauty and evident strength such as I never have seen in any other auto at anywhere near the price. There is nothing cheap about one little item."

Comfort for the Wife

Regarding the matter of comfort in riding, my wife could best answer that question. She selected the left hand side of the tonneau seat as her "place" in the car and from the first ride of a few miles, to one of 625 miles that we have just finished, she has been thoroughly comfortable and declares that even a long ride does not tire her.

The quietness of the engine is a constant surprise.

Special Features—Chalmers Six-48

Full 48 h. p. motor—Big 7-passenger body. 126" wheel base—34" x 4 1/2" tires. Nobby tread on rear wheels. Entz non-stallable starter. 48" vanadium steel rear springs—extra strong torque tube. Equipment complete even to Yale lock to prevent theft of car.

TWO OF KALUCKI'S 'DEPOSITORS' HAD BRICKS FOR BANKER

Polish Financier, Arrested, Makes Assignment Which Doesn't Satisfy Countrymen.

Paul S. Kalucki of 1027 O'Fallon street, who was released on a $1000 bond, following his arrest in Forest Park last evening, owes $10,232 to the Polish working men and women who made him their "banker," according to figures compiled today by the police of the Carr Street Station.

The largest creditor is Stanislaus Olaszynski, a shoemaker, of 1212 North Twelfth street, who entrusted $2400, his savings, to Kalucki, receiving an unsecured 6 months' note. Jan Stojanowski of 1408 North Tenth street holds a note for $800, payable on demand. Most of the other notes are in sums from $20 to $100, with a few as small as $10. Kalucki's closed office was besieged again this morning by men and women, who hoped to see him there. Two men carried bricks, wrapped in handkerchiefs.

Kalucki did not appear, and the only information for his creditors' guidance was given in a note fastened to the office door, which stated that he had made an assignment of all his property to Barney L. Schwartz. The latter is Kalucki's lawyer, and a member of the Board of Aldermen.

Many of the persons on the sidewalk could not read the note. Those who read it, or to whom its meaning was explained, did not seem satisfied or in any way impressed.

"What right did he have to give his money to Schwartz?" they asked, and the reply that the assignment was for the benefit of creditors, did not seem to comfort them.

Schwartz refused today to say where Kalucki was. He has advised him against saying anything about his affairs. Mrs. Kalucki has not been seen in the neighborhood since Sunday, although the Kalucki home is next door to the office.

The lawyer said Kalucki's assets would reach a total of $17,000, and he did not believe the claims against him would equal that amount. He predicted that the claimants would get 100 cents on the dollar.

TROLLEY HITS JITNEY, 2 HURT

United Railways Work Car Runs Into Auto on Olive Street.

Charles O'Hard, 33 years old, of 6013 Westminster place, and Edward Wein-furth, 36 years old, of 5821 Kingsbury boulevard, were severely bruised about the head and body last night when a jitney auto, in which they were riding, was struck by a United Railways work car at Twentieth and Olive streets. John Willson of 6455 Wise avenue was driving the auto.

O'Hard and Wein-furth said the auto had stopped at the corner of Twentieth and Olive while going south, to let a work car pass, and that as the auto started up again a second work car came along and struck the machine. Willson estimated the auto damage at $700.

MRS. THOMSON TELLS WOMEN

How She Was Helped During Certain Ailments by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"I am just 52 years of age and for a protracted period covering six years I suffered terribly. I tried several doctors but none seemed to give me any relief. At intervals the pains were intense in both sides, and made me so weak that I had to go to bed. At last a friend recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to me and I tried it at once and found much relief. After that I had no pains at all and could do my housework and shopping the same as always. For years I have praised Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for what it has done for me, and shall always recommend it as a woman's friend. You are at liberty to use my letter in any way."—Mrs. Thomson, 649 W. Russell st., Philadelphia, Pa.

CEREAL COMPANY WINS SUIT

NEW YORK, July 21.—Judge Charles M. Hough in Federal Court here has refused to enjoin the Cream of Wheat Co., which was charged in proceedings instituted by the Atlantic and Pacific Tea Co. with violating the Sherman anti-trust law and the Clayton commodity act.

The tea company, it was charged, sold the other company's cereal at a price lower than the other retailers could afford to sell. The Cream of Wheat Co. then refused to sell the tea company and suit was begun. In his decision Judge Hough said the cereal was not a necessity "and its continued existence depends upon the defendant's ability to control the marketing of its own product."

Homely, Yet Admired and Envied; Her Secret

The convention crowd made a path for her, cast admiring side glances, then with longing eyes followed her to the elevator. It was at the Ponchartraine in Detroit. The incident was recalled when I chanced to sit across table from the woman. What was it about her that caused all that commotion? Her complexion. Really, I've never beheld its equal. Venturing to pick up acquaintance, I learned the secret.

"I've tried to make the most of my one charm," she said. "I know men adore makeup and artificiality. I bar cosmetics; there are two things I use to promote natural loveliness and youthful appearance. When my complexion begins to age, I get an ounce of mercurochrome, wash it off in the morning. This gradually takes off the outer skin; then I have a brand-new complexion, marvellously beautiful, as you see."

"Wrinkles never bother me. At their inception I bathe my face in a solution made by dissolving an ounce of powder of sulfur in a half pint of witch hazel. It works like magic."—Mona Morrow, 11 Tenth—ALV.

ELBOW PUNCH MAY END PUNCHING CAREER OF FRED NELSON

to Kelly's Blow Breaks Opponent's Breastbone, in Third Round of Bout.

Harry Sharpe's Decisions

LEO KELLY, of St. Louis, vs. Fred Nelson of San Francisco, eight rounds, weight 152 pounds, ringside—Kelly the winner, when Nelson was forced by an injury to retire at end of fourth round. Kelly, the winner, bout stopped in fourth round to prevent further punishment of Kelly.

By Harry S. Sharp.

Through 28 rounds of boxing were scheduled for the weekly entertainment the Future City Athletic Club in its arena last night, there were but 13 left. The thirteenth proved to be a very unlucky one for Fred Nelson of a San Francisco.

Nelson fought in the "main" event against Leo Kelly, of this city. The fight for this was 152 pounds ringside. Nelson made it and looked better than when he had done this for Kelly before. Kelly weighed about 148 lbs. in the first round, even, Nelson starting off best, but Kelly had the better of the last half. Nelson outboxed Kelly in the second and third rounds, and was faster. Some hard punches and "slugs" were exchanged, but Nelson's were better placed.

Kelly had the better of the fourth round, and at the end of this the thirteenth round of the show, Nelson called to his corner and announced that he was unable to continue, owing to a severe pain in his chest. A suggested that he submit to an examination to ascertain the extent of his injury.

White Sox Owner Says Team Has Been Given Worst of It by Umpires.

CHICAGO, July 21.—President Comiskey of the Chicago Americans said today he would protest to President Johnson of the American League against the suspension of Manager Rowland, who, according to the white Sox magnate, has been the victim of the "worst umpiring he has ever seen in the American League." The charge of "worst umpiring" was made by Rowland, who was suspended for profanity, but President Comiskey said that later the umpires admitted that the suspension was caused by Rowland's lack of speed in leaving the field when ordered to do so.

"Poor umpiring has cost my club seven or eight games this year," said the magnate. "It looks to me as though Rowland is being made a mark. Umpires have called balks on my pitchers in Detroit, but failed to do so when they made the same motions in St. Louis; they beat us out of a clean triple play when we were at Boston; last Monday Mayer was hit by a pitched ball, but was not allowed to go to first, because, the umpire said, he allowed himself intentionally to be hit."

"The chasing of Rowland was senseless. He went out to protest, as he had a right to do, and as I expect him to do. He told me he didn't swear until after he had been thrown out of the game."

"I expect to protest against the suspension and try to get a square deal for my team."

Red Sox, Here for Seven Games, Now Playing Like A Real Pennant Winner

League Leaders Have Entirely Recovered From the Dis-sensions Which Threatened to Wreck the Club on Its Earlier Visit Here This Year.

By W. J. O'Connor.

BILL CARRIGAN, the lantern-jawed son of Swat who is destined, many experts hold, to command the next American League champions, returns today in quite a different mood to the one that possessed him on May 24, when he first invaded these parts. Carrigan's crimson-faced force now is in first place, holding the fort behind an intrenchment of one game, after routing the enemy in a bayonet charge. Carrigan's men have just completed a conquest in Chicago, winning four out of five, a dose that has sickened the entire population of Comiskeyville.

When they last appeared here, though, the Red Sox were said to be ridden by dissensions. Hubert Leonard, the champion pitcher of 1914, had just been indefinitely suspended. Vean Gregg, another high-priced star, was left at home. Joe Wood and Ray Collins were in disgrace, having failed their manager shamefully. But since then things have happened. Wood, Collins and Leonard are in the game up to their necks, although Leonard is by no means the Leonard of last year. However, Wood and Collins are winning, while the odds of the pitching burden still rests lightly on the shoulders of Shore, Foster and Ruth, youngsters, who have come through with assuring stability.

Team Seems Sure Winner.

And from now on it's only a question of how fast the Red Sox care to make the pace. It seems. Since June 1, they have won 24 and lost 14 games, a percentage of .63, which is a pennant pace. They have knocked the breath out of Washington and Chicago in two "cross" series and possess sufficient punch to always arrive to the emergency. Indeed, there's nothing to suggest that the White Sox haven't the batting punch of any team in the American League. The White Sox haven't the batting punch of any team in the American League. The White Sox haven't the batting punch of any team in the American League.

Interstate Will Drop Two Teams From Belleville

Schedule Will Be Completed This Season With Only Six Clubs in the Race.

At a meeting of the managers of the Interstate League held last night, it was decided to drop the Belleville Maroons and the Bevers of the same city and finish out the season with only six clubs. The Maroons and Bevers were asked to be dropped owing to the poor attendance this season. With only six clubs in the circuit, the schedule is calling for a "double" game to be arranged. Next Sunday the Vabadas play the Alton Braves, the C. A. C. nine takes the Ben Millers, while the Donnelly Stars and East St. Louis battle.

In an effort to cut down expenses on account of the poor attendance and the many postponements it also was decided to go back to the single umpire system.

DAVENPORT MUST RETURN IF JONES S TO FLAG

Big Right-Hander's Three Successive Failures Has Cost Club First Place.

By W. J. O'Connor.

TERRIER SCOUTS SIGN SPECTACULAR PITCHER

LEE MEADOWS' success as a major league pitcher, despite his apparent handicap of being forced to wear glasses, has caused the local Federal League club to hire a respected hurler. Frank Ellerman of the Mount Vernon Club, who recently fanned 19 men in a nine-inning game, is Jones' newest recruit.

Ellerman is near-sighted without his "specs" and therefore wears them on the hill. He is booked to report here this week and will be given a thorough try-out, as Jones is sorely in need of pitching talent.

Unless Dave Davenport, the big right-hander, returns to the form he had in the first place, the Terriers had copped the first game, with Plank on the hill. Davenport was out of the second, though, and after being pelted for three and a half hours in the ninth, he was derelict.

He also made a failure in the series with the Whites. July 20 he was chased in eight innings, while the Terriers were able to win the three games, the Terriers would now be in first place instead of the Whites. Behind the leaders, here's what Dave's record is:

Plank a Sure Winner.

Eddie Plank, the veteran south-paw, pitched another one of his great games yesterday. The sidewheeler had everything. In the first six innings only 18 batters faced him, not a hit coming off his delivery. Road Knabe started the seventh with a double, but Plank's ball, which was a double, was hit by Duncan's hit. Another single came off Plank in the eighth and another in the ninth.

In the last 23 innings Plank has pitched his seven hits have been made off him, while three runs have been tallied. In the same number of innings he has allowed only one hit. Yesterday he had perfect control, his record in the league in the 14-inning battle with the Whites he sent one batter to first via the four-ball.

He drew Chief Bender as his opponent yesterday and made the count 3-0 over his former mate. Miller's single, a triple by Chapman and Joe Wood's double, were the only hits in the fourth. A single by Miller, Drake's double and Chapman's hit produced two more runs in the fifth.

One of the best week-day crowds of the season, numbering about 7500, was on hand for the twin bill.

With the series with the Terrapins tied, Joe Jones probably will send Groom to the hill in the final day. Bill Bailey is down to oppose him.

Browns Have Won More Games Than They Have Lost, 24-22, at Home

DEAVING into sport archives, one often is startled by the findings. For instance: So far this season the Browns have won more games than they have lost at home. Their record is: Won 24, lost 22, a percentage of .521. Their record on the road is: Won 19, lost 20, a percentage of .488. This means that they have won 43 out of 82 games at home and 39 out of 80 on the road.

SPORT SALAD BY L.C. DAVIS.

Plank's Perfect Pitching Pickles Bender.

CHIEF BENDER and old Eddie Plank As pitchers very highly rank. They played together many years and have listened to the rooster's cheers.

'Twas finally ordained by fate That these old pals should separate. For Connie Mack surmised that they Were through, and sent 'em on their way.

The Chief hooked up with Baltimore, Which made the fans of Philly sore. And Plank decided he would go And pitch for the Athletics.

And so it came to pass that they Opposed each other, yesterday. The fact was duly advertised And thus the roosters were advised.

Resulting in a joyous throng That cheered the heroes loud and long. Then Eddie didn't do a thing But loosen up his pitching wing.

He eased the gaff into the Chief And Baltimore was brought to grief. For Plank, the old-time pitcher, Had a hand in the victory.

Rickey's Rookies' Riotous Rally.

THE BROWNS' rookies, Mr. Brown And threw the New York Yankees down.

To Wellman we return our thanks For trimming up those pesky Yanks. 'Twas William said: "It can't be done!" But just the same the browns won.

And furthermore those Boston Sox 'd get some sudden shocks.

For, when our Browns are on a streak They're real humdingers, so to speak. Long's Larrup Maddens Marquard.

Long's Larrup Maddens Marquard.

THE Cards took Mr. Marquard's trim and the tribe of John McGraw.

Our losing streak has gone to smash And now we'll make a forward dash. Our thanks are due to Tommy Long. A kick for the Browns is very strong.

He didn't do a thing but paste A lead on each with two on "baste." Where he gave the equine laugh To Blossom Seely's better half.

Youth Will Be Served.

That kid Plank gets better every day. He ought to be at the top of his form in about 10 more years.

The White Sox couldn't find Shore, and were accordingly swamped. Joe Wood is in town. So is Eddie Plank. King Cole has just left.

Charley Brickley Will Coach at Johns Hopkins Instead of Penn State

Charley Brickley, the most versatile athlete at Harvard in some years, has been named to coach the football eleven of Johns Hopkins University at Baltimore next fall. It had been previously announced in dispatches that Brickley would replace Bill Hollenbeck as coach of the Pennsylvania State University.

CHAMPION EVANS LEADING EDWARDS IN MORNING PLAY

Golf Favorites Making Good in First 18 Holes of Second Round, at Cleveland.

MATFIELD COUNTRY CLUB, CLEVELAND, O., July 21.—In this morning's round of play for the championship the Western Amateur Golf Association the favorites were playing up to expectations of the gallery.

The match attracting most attention was that between Ned Sawyer and Paul Hunter, who won the low qualifying honor. Hunter's game broke noticeably, after the first nine holes, resulting in giving Sawyer a lead of four at the finish of the eighteenth hole.

With such a handicap it was not considered likely that Hunter could survive against a star of Sawyer's skill. In the second round this afternoon, however, Addition Stillwell, who defeated Harry Potter Tuesday afternoon, was 2 down to Guy Miller of Detroit at the end of the morning round.

Joe Boie, the Cleveland hope, was 1 up on Dewitt Betch, after the first 18 holes. H. P. Bingham, the Cleveland man, had W. C. Fowles 2 down in the morning.

Clack Evans was maintaining a safe lead over Kenneth Edwards for nine to 2 up at the eighteenth. The scores today were generally good. Sawyer got a 7, Bingham a 7, Fowles a 7, and Boie a 7.

Jack Neville, the Pacific Coast champion, was 5 up on Daniel of Indianapolis, with 15 for the morning round.

Bresnahan Fines Zabel and "Zim;" Suspends Former

For Being Out of Condition, Pitcher Is Sent Home Minus $100 Salary.

PHILADELPHIA, July 21.—Roger Bresnahan, manager of the Cubs, is on the war path again. After his men lost a game to the Phillies yesterday, when there was no excuse for it, Roger took a more drastic action than he has at any time since he assumed the management of the Chicago team.

He fined George Zabel $100 and sent him home with instructions to get in pitching form and he slapped a fine of $25 on Heinie Zimmerman for loading down to first base when there was a chance for Heinie to have beaten the ball for a base hit.

"I will fine any man on the team who does not keep in shape and who does not run out every ball hit," Roger said. "There's no excuse for loading in a ball game and there's no excuse for a pitcher being out of condition at this time of the year."

When Bresnahan told Zimmerman of the fine it was at the close of the sixth inning. Zim went into a rage and said he was through and ran out after his glove, then jogged to the clubhouse. Bresnahan made no effort to get him back, but in the first of the seventh the Cubs tied the score and in doing so Vic Saler was hurt. Zimmerman then came back of his own accord and helped finish the game.

The accident to Saler was the worst since the Cubs have had this year. It may keep the star first baseman out of the game for a month and he is doing more for the team than any other man. He strained a ligament in his knee in sliding to the plate to score when he and Bresnahan turned a double steal.

HEATH ENTERS 5-MILE SWIM; WHITAKER BALKS

Chauncey Heath, one of the best all-around swimmers developed at the M. A. A. since the advent of Coach Whitaker, has entered the 5-mile river swim, to take place next Sunday. Billy Weathers of the Western Rowing Club, which is promoting the event, announced the receipt of the entry this morning.

Simultaneously with the receipt of Heath's name came the announcement that Coach Whitaker would not sanction Heath's start in the event as a member of the M. A. A. unless he reported his intention to Whitaker before the race.

Heath had told Whitaker two days ago that he had entered the swim, but that he had not reported his intention to Whitaker before the race. The club held that Heath must report to its coach before taking part. In any event as the club's representative, in the M. A. A. entered the swim, he had made an admission that he had been made an club member. Heath's entry was made and was four in number. Heath's coach, who had planned to use him exclusively in the sprint.

WRAY'S COLUMN

Chick Evans in Corbett's Class.

CHICK EVANS, at 2:15 p. m. yesterday afternoon, at the Mayfield Golf Links, Cleveland, was automatically made a member of the United Order of Lemon Pickers, of which James J. Corbett is Master Picker, and the membership of which includes about every male adult in the world who ought to know better.

Evans qualified for the organization when Harry R. B. Davis, Panama-Pacific champion, failed to qualify for the Western golf tournament, at the time and place mentioned above. Evans has given the Native Son of the Golden Glow the stealthy O O and decided (for publication) that he was a national championship factor. The "factor" threw him down hard.

Some time or other a great player will become a great expert in the sport at which he made good as a performer; but it has yet to happen.

Ready for Picking.

FRANK BAKER is about ripe for someone to pluck. It can't be by anyone connected with the Federal League, however, since the home-run cluster is tied up with a contract that admits of no dalliance. But it can't be Connie Mack wants to sell him, the records show the emergency king is now putting the screws on him.

In other words, the records show that, playing for the Upland (Pa.) team, Baker is hitting .354 and has scored on the average more than one run per game.

In the same league Larry McLean is batting .188, showing a weakness for highballs, served fast.

Newport Puts One Over.

CONFUSION in the tennis world, resulting last year from mutual defeats administered to each other by Maurice McLoughlin and Norris Williams, will be worse confused this year, unless net "form" runs true.

This is because two tournaments, both hydroponic in character, will rank 24 players of the country, will be held within two weeks of each other this year.

Williams, McLoughlin, Griffin, W. Johnston, Strachan, Hunt, Church, Behr, Mathey and others are certain to be represented in both events. The closeness of the tourneys may be an aid to form, for the players will have practically no time to get out of condition or to go stale.

Same Field in Both.

LIVE management of the Newport Casino is responsible for the double championship. The West Side Club of Forest Hills, L. I., took the national away from the Casino this year. The live management of the Casino, however, has retained sanction for an earlier tournament, and have made certain that all the stars will play.

If the winner of the first event fails to win the second again, the same field it will be convincing proof that championships in tennis mean little.

However, if there were such a thing as a tennis champion, it would be John Ruskin.

REFeree FINDS FOY AND WOMAN GUILTY OF MISCONDUCT

Divorce Recommended for Man Who Named Actor in Answer to Suit of Wife.

NEW YORK, July 21.—Eddie Foy, who appears in vaudeville with his eight children, has just been found guilty of misconduct with Mrs. Sarah Jennie Gertrude N. Dean, actress, wife of John Wooster Dean, in a report signed by Saul J. Dickelheimer, as referee, in the Supreme Court.

Mrs. Dean began an action for divorce against her husband, leading man for Miss Fannie Ward, formerly of St. Louis, who was named as correspondent. The wife also demanded $100,000 from Miss Ward for alleged alienation of Dean's affections.

Dean filed an answer to his wife's divorce suit and named "Edward Foy," an amended paper filed later eliminated the name of Foy but alleged that between 1905 and 1908 Mrs. Dean had been guilty of misconduct with "a well-known actor" in houses on West Sixty-fourth street and West Sixty-first street. There were said to have been other improper acts at Pesham Manor, N. Y., where Mrs. Dean was a home.

Eddie Foy was first mentioned when Mrs. Dean applied for alimony pending trial. Justice Cobalan named Dickelheimer as referee that the hearings might be secret.

Charges Against Dean Not Sustained. None of the attorneys will discuss the report, no motion having been made to confirm it, but it is known that the referee did not sustain the charges against Dean.

Mrs. Dean denied the allegations made by Mrs. Anna Fisher Evert, formerly her friend, that she had seen Mrs. Dean with Foy in Foy's room. The wife also denied that before her marriage, on Sept. 23, 1903, she had been known as "Queen of the Haymarket," or that she ever had accepted money from a man named Foy.

Mrs. Dean's stage name was Ruth Langdon, and she played in "Mr. Hamlet of Broadway," in which Foy had the leading role. John R. Rogers, theatrical manager, said that while the play was on the road, Mrs. Dean and Foy occupied connecting rooms. Mrs. Dean replied that Rogers once was in a sanitarium because of mental trouble.

Has Known Foy for Years. "I have known Mr. Foy for years, but my relationship with him has been proper in every respect," said Mrs. Dean. "I have dined with him often, but no act of mine could be criticized."

She denied a statement by Rogers that from his observations he was convinced that the relationship existing between Foy and Mrs. Dean was improper. Will A. Page, theatrical press agent, who said he had seen Foy and Mrs. Dean together in a room and had drunk with them, was contradicted by Mrs. Dean. Foy also entered a general denial of all charges concerning himself. "Within the last 10 years," he said, "I have never been away from my family except for five nights, and those I spent in my room at the Lamb's Club."

ROOMING HOUSE PORTER WROTE COMPLAINTS TO THE PRESIDENT

He Demanded Protection From "Doctors' Association" Wireless Torture—Written in Observation Ward.

Letters written to President Wilson, Cabinet members and other Government officials at Washington, caused the arrest last night of the author, Charles Kuene, 32 years old, a porter in a rooming house at 108 North Broadway. He was placed in the observation ward at the city hospital.

For a month Kuene had been writing to Washington officials, complaining that he was being tortured by means of wireless waves. He wrote that the "Doctors' Association" had control of his mind and body through wireless electrical radiations and he demanded protection.

The arrest was made by Government secret service operatives.

LETTERS OF BOMBS ON LUSITANIA

Letter Received by Chicago Paper

CHICAGO, July 21.—Federal officers and the Chicago police today began an investigation as a result of letters signed "J. S. K." received by the Daily News. The letter said that the writer had placed explosives aboard the Lusitania before the steamer started on her fatal trip; that he was a member of a "gang" but was disgusted and did not want to incite America any longer, and that he would be dead in Lake Michigan before the letter was delivered.

The writer said he was an English miner, as were the other members of the "gang." He referred to "Holt's bomb" and said his was "more deadly." H. G. Clabaugh, chief of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, said it was possible the letter was the work of a demented man but was worth looking into.

COMMUNICATION WITH MEXICO CITY AGAIN SUSPENDED

Relief Measures Halted and Situation in Capital Reported to Be Dangerous.

WASHINGTON, July 21.—Further developments in the rapidly changing events at Mexico City were anxiously awaited by officials here today.

The Mexican capital is again occupied by Zapata forces, the city apparently is once more isolated from telegraphic communication from the outside world and railroad communication with Vera Cruz is suspended. These are the latest developments in Mexico as disclosed in official reports to the State Department.

Relief measures for the hungry civilian population of the Mexican capital have halted in consequence of suspension of railroad communication and the situation is reported as desperate.

The re-occupation of Mexico City Sunday by Zapata's army after evacuation by the Carranza forces under Gen. Gonzales took officials here by surprise. The Zapata forces were driven from there 11 days ago by Gonzales, who is speeding northward to meet the advancing Villa troops.

The supposition here had been that the Zapata forces were operating along the railroad to Vera Cruz in an attempt to effect a junction with the advancing Villa column.

News of a battle near Pachuca, already reached by Villa troops, is momentarily expected.

NIGHT PROGRAM OF MUNICIPAL PICNIC AT FOREST PARK

Mandolin Clubs, Brass Band and Singers to Furnish Music.

How sweet the moonlight sleeps upon this land,
Here will we sit, and let the sounds of music
Steal in our ears.

That was Shakespeare's idea of a good time for young folks. And that is the sort of thing which young and old will get at the municipal picnic in Forest Park next Saturday evening.

The moon will be working on the proper schedule, unless "partly cloudy" weather should intervene. The music has been arranged for. It will be furnished by the Washington University and Soldan High School mandolin clubs, a brass band and a double quartet of megaphone singers, beside vocal soloists.

The park's new lighting system will be in operation for the first time that evening, and a horseshoe of light will line the grand basin. The megaphone singers will be in boats in the lagoon at the foot of Art Hill, the mandolin players will be in canoes, and the band will be on shore at the foot of the hill, with a sounding board above them.

Green Grass Enough for All.
Benches for 200 persons will be on the hillside and there will be room for everybody else on the green grass. Automobiles can be parked on the top of the hill.

The vocal entertainers will be Misses
Elizabeth Lavin, Estelle Muller, Pansy
Hood, Vesta White, Marie Connors,
Mary Ellis and Nat Blinn, Steve Cody,
Robert Stark, Henri Le Garde, Earl Hanbrick and John Menown. The song program was arranged by Menown.

Park Commissioner Cunliff and his assistants are making the final arrangements not only for the Forest Park picnic, but for similar gatherings in all the city parks, Saturday being the first city-wide park picnic day.

A mounted drill by 40 members of the mounted police of the Forest Park district will open the drill programme Saturday afternoon on the field south of the Jefferson Memorial. The mounted men will go through a regular United States cavalry drill, and will be in charge of Capt. Schwartz.

Gov. Major, Mayor Kiel, members of the Police Board, and other city officials will review the drills from a stand to be erected near the public tennis courts.

Police Zouaves to Drill.
The police zouaves, 51 men, will follow the mounted drill on the same field. The zouaves are the picked men from the drill squads and form the show-staff of the department. Their drills have attracted attention at all the cities where they have given exhibitions.

A polo contest by members of the St.
Louis Country Club will take place on the field at 4 p. m. at the close of the zouave drill. The field is 300 feet wide and 500 feet long. Seats for spectators will be provided by Park Commissioner Cunliff at safe distances around the drill grounds.

Spectators at the drill exercises also will be able to see the exhibition tennis games by the present city champions in singles and doubles, Roland Hoerr and Drummond Jones. They will play at 4 o'clock on the public courts adjoining the drill grounds. The deciding game of the women's city championship in doubles will be played on the courts at 5 o'clock.

'HORSE PICKET' DUTY DONE BY ST. LOUIS CAVALRYMEN

Members of Troop B, N. G. M., Help
Mules Pull Provisions Over Washouts.

Members of Cavalry Troop B, N. G. M., on their march yesterday afternoon from Byrnesville, Jefferson County, to Rob-ertsville, Franklin County, had something to do besides sitting straight on their horses and enjoying the admiration of rural ladies. They had to lend a hand, with towlines, in pulling their provision wagons over washouts and unusually difficult places in the road.

Each wagon was drawn by four mules, but all their mullah strength was not sufficient to get them over some of the rough places, and the men were ordered to "horse picket" duty. Lines were attached to the wagons, and the men and their horses got the heavy vehicles over.

The troop left Byrnesville after an early breakfast and reached Robertsville, 17 miles distant, and 41 miles from St. Louis, at 4:15 p. m. The remainder of the week will be spent in camp there, in drills and maneuvers. Maj. J. L.
Hanley, Inspector-General of the National Guard of Missouri, is at the camp.

office of a physician, who said she was suffering from the effects of a drug.

Miss Hensell, after being revived, was taken home by her foster-father, William A. Rund. She told the police she had

ST. LOUIS MAN, LONG MISSING HEIR, RECEIVES $15,000 ESTATE

Henry Van Pelt, Who Ran Away
From New Jersey Home in 1869,
Gets Sister's Property.

Henry Van Pelt of 646 Maple avenue, an engineer, left New York for St.
Louis last night with deeds for $15,000 worth of property in Jacobstown, N. J., in his possession. He was born in Oving-ton avenue, Bay Ridge, but ran away to the West in 1869, when he was 12 years old. The last visit he had made to his home was in 1887.

Two years ago Van Pelt's sister, the wife of Eugene Emley, a public prosecutor of Passaic County, died. A year later Emley himself died, without having revoked deeds for the property in Jacobstown. In the settling up of the two estates it was found that Van Pelt was the one surviving heir. His whereabouts were unknown, but a New York attorney knew that he had once lived in Alton, Ill., and he wrote to Mayor Beall there asking for trace of him.

Van Pelt had left Alton in 1901, and the search promised to lag. A Post-Dispatch reporter learned that a Henry Van Pelt was chief engineer for the Ferguson-McKinney Dry Goods Co. He made inquiry and through the New York World this Van Pelt was identified as the man sought.

'Never have you heard from a record such delicate distinction between instrument and instrument—never such subtle tonal tints.'

All Records were half-dumb Records —till the AEOLIAN-VOCALION came

YES, it is true that the Aeolian-Vocation voices new music beauties from your records—beauties
you never knew they possessed!

Put a record in this Aeolian-Vocation—this "tonal phonograph whose voice is Art." Let us take Liszt's Hungarian Rhapsody, interpreted by many instruments. It will be a difficult test.

Soft, deep, profoundly mystic, the sombre tracteries of tone wave forth. And, as they unfold from the Aeolian-Vocation you feel a strange solemnity. You recognize new, fresh-born, living qualities of tone. Now the bass tuba sounds—so low that you hear it phonographically reproduced for the first time.
Now the wistful flutes throat unmistakably their purities of clear woodtone—that "woody"
quality before unuttered by a phonograph.
Never have you heard such delicate distinction between instrument and instrument upon a phonograph—never such subtle tonal tints.
The long-dumb beauties in your records are finding utterance at last—through the Aeolian-Vocation!

BUT there is yet even a stranger "miracle of sound." Under your simple pressure of the Graduola device—a feature of every Aeolian-Vocation—a remarkable effect occurs. To the exact proportion of your pressure the music softens. You find you are actually shading your music to your mood. You are literally pressing your feeling into it with the spontaneity with which you "hum an air." Notes, phrases, passages, melt at your will into softened, liquid ecstasies of sound. You are bringing unexpected color, inspiring variety into a record that you thought was "set."

What is the secret of this modern "miracle of sound?"

Not one invention—many.

Thus the Symphonetic Horn, whose use is to preserve even the subtlest character of instrumental tones, is but one characteristic of the Aeolian-Vocation.

Its Sound Box which, with its novel suspension device, helps to produce so majestic a range of tone, is but one more.

The very Graduola device itself which shades without smothering tone—which you play, but play only when you do not prefer the Vocation to "play itself"—is but one more.

It is the whole of these units meeting in one great unit—the Aeolian-Vocation—which has made the dumb tones of all records speak a new language of tonal beauty never voiced from records before.

AEOLIAN-VOCALIONS are no more expensive than are many grades of other phonographs. $90 will buy you one—with a Vocation Automatic Stop, by which, with two movements—simultaneously performed—you can start a record and stop it at any place. Or you can purchase a Vocation from us for a small initial payment and payments thereafter as low as $5 a month.

AN INVITATION

We invite you and your friends to call and hear any records you desire to be played for you on the Vocation.

We suggest that you bring with you one or two of your own familiar records. Hear for yourself the remarkable results produced upon them by the Vocation.

Perhaps play the Aeolian-Vocation yourself. Hear how sweetly it brings out the buried beauties which records were not known to possess. You need not feel the slightest obligation for this. Consider it rather a favor granted by yourself. You'll be welcome any day.

The Aeolian-Vocation is made by The Aeolian Company—makers also of the Steinway, Steck, Wheelock, Struyens, Girard, and famous Weber Pianos—largest manufacturers of musical instruments in the world. Illustrated Booklet sent upon request.

A "Joint Agreement"

The Story of a girl who refused to accept a legacy until it was suggested she might also take the young fellow wanting to give it to her. -O- -O- -O- -O- -O-

By Victor Radcliffe.

"This is the status of the case," spoke Rodney Blair. "Practically," responded Rufus Wells briefly. The young man's face was drawn and lashed. He fumbled with his watch chain holding the latest, most expensive watch money could buy. He looked down at the four-carat diamond on his finger and the same look on the rich texture of his fashionable apparel.

"Let me think," he said in a lost, "any tone." "Let me think. And I don't make it up!" he exclaimed with idleness. "What do you mean by 'make it up'?" quired the practical, keen-eyed attorney.

"Way, I've spent money that didn't come to me, haven't I? The little estate that should have gone to this poor orphan girl, Eunice Blair, has been squandered by me. How do you think I feel—why, I'm a thief, that's all I am."

"I know you are an idiot to take this thing incident this way!" retorted the lawyer. "Trifling incident!" fairly shouted Rodney, starting up with animation. "It's the very life of that poor orphan! See here, I have learned poorly that my half uncle, James Ross, left this Miss Lucy Wilson and her help, aged mother to believe that they were to inherit his wealth."

"Which he left to you, exactly," nodded Wells—legally. "His estate," he said, "is yours yet—what is left of it." "Yes," persisted Rodney, "but I have not that these Wilson people are my poor. The father is entirely unable to work. He is a school teacher, but lost her position two months ago, and they are in almost abject poverty. Among the papers of my uncle, a codicil to his will was found giving his estate to me. Take what I can get, only do it quickly. Then I add what I have in bank and give it to the estate to its right owner."

Yes, that is true. And therefore worthless. Don't be a fool, Blair! You are legal heir to the estate. No one can take it away from you."

"O, I'm going to give it away of my own free will," announced Rodney determinedly. "I want you to take all the furniture in my bachelor quarters, all the gewgaws I have squandered money on—my automobile, the car you bought for me. Take what I can get, only do it quickly. Then I add what I have in bank and give it to the estate to its right owner."

lawyer Wells made a face as though allowing a bitter pill. The most extraordinary young man of the biggest fool I ever met," he flung, as Rodney left the office. "I placed his diamond ring, watch and some papers of value upon the desk. Rodney Blair was in earnest. Two months previous he had been unexpectedly lifted from a small paying clerkship to what was to him positive affluence. His uncle had left him $10,000 cash. There was not the trace of an ill streak in his easy-going, harmless nature, but Rodney went mad with death. He had never had more than a few dollars ahead in all his life, and now he imagined himself a Croesus. He rushed up a flat, he hired a servant, purchased an automobile, he fitted it with an elegant wardrobe. He became the envy of all the youths of the town.

There were no champagne suppers nor "kiss rioting." Rodney simply spent a money. He distributed generous needy friends, he gave expensive nephews and trips to near summer resorts. Quite incidentally he had learned of a existence of the Wilsons and the circumstances surrounding the estate. The rule had been shown. He was quick to convictions, speedy to act. Two days later Rodney took the train for Mayville, the little town where the Wilsons resided.

Odious Overhears. INQUIRY he made upon his arrival emphasized his first information that the Wilsons were very poor and very wretched. He saw a local attorney through whom Wells was to transmit the odd $10,000 that was left to the legacy. Then he located the home of the Wilsons. It was a wretchedly old and rickety cottage at the edge of the town, but it had clean curtains, its little porch floor was white and untracked, the flowers that has blessed our lives! There it is. He put his hands steadfastly behind him.

"I won't take it," he declared, gaining pole now. "Don't you dare throw it down to me, or I'll cover it up with the dirt and nobody will get it. Why, that one stolen sight I had of you and that dear old father of yours!"

"Where?" inquired Miss Wilson wonderingly. He did not tell. Amid his new embarrassment Rodney proposed that they go and have a talk with Wells.

The latter suggested a division. This Rodney, stanchly refused to confirm. Then, in a whisper aside, with a sly wink, the lawyer submitted:

"Then make some joint agreement," and Rodney got a new thought. It was so precious a thought, that it grew into a settlement until he had to go several times to Mayville for a "consultation."

The "joint agreement" materialized for the last time he left that little village Lucy was his promised wife. (Copyright by W. G. Chapman.)

Why Owls Hoot

Sandman story of the Mermaid who transformed the dishonest Indian boy in the Magic pool.

By Mrs. F. A. Walker.

ONCE upon a time in the far West, there lived on the shores of a lake, a tribe of Indians whose chief had two sons. Wani was the older boy, and Sequa was the younger, and instead of being like his brother, he was a delicate lad.

But the heart of the chief went out to the slender lad with the pitifully sad face.

Sequa felt very sad that he was not a boy of whose hunting his father could be proud, and the chief knew the child's grief. He would sit for hours by the lake, whistling in a low, mournful note.

One day Wani thought he would watch to see what his younger brother did and amusement by the pool. So he hid behind a rock that jutted out into the water. Just as the sun set Wani heard a peculiar whistling. And out of the water, which was beginning to bubble, there rose a lovely form of a mermaid. Her gold hair hung to her waist, about which was a girdle embroidered with pearls.

"You have only one day more to wait," said the mermaid. "I promised you that tomorrow eve your wish would be granted. Be sure to be here by sunset and bring the bag of magic seed."

"Ho! ho!" laughed Wani to himself, as he sneaked away so Sequa could not see him. "That younger brother of mine is getting ready to play some fine trick. What a string of pearls to be a mermaid's waist! I think I can get them."

THE next evening when Sequa set out for the pool with the bag of seed Wani was on his back, Wani crept up after him. Just as the younger lad was about to set his foot on the old tree trunk the older one gave him a sharp blow which knocked him unconscious. Then Wani took Sequa's clothing and magic seed.

"So you got your wish, after all," smilingly said the mermaid. "You were brave and noble to save him when he had treated you so unkindly. He has broken my string of shored pearls, and they are scattered all over the pool. I will see that he looks for them forever."

So, throwing some of the water on the frightened mermaid, she said some strange words. A mist rose out of the pool and floated over the two boys.

"You whistled to me as if Sequa were calling," continued the mermaid. "Now you shall whistle no more. You shall hoot, hoot, hoot all night long at the moon, and see only by night, and you will never find the pearls, for you will be blind in the daylight—you shall be an owl!"

And so he was. For as Sequa ran home in the glow of the evening a boy full of life and strength, an ugly old owl flapped its wings mournfully and sailed away to the forests. (Copyright by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

The New Siberia. FROM the foundation of the Russian empire at Moscow, about 1500, says Dr. Nansen in his recent book entitled, "Through Siberia, the Land of the Future," Russia has grown at the average rate of 55 square miles a day, or 20,000 square miles a year—a territorial increase that is almost without parallel.

During the first three centuries of Russian control of Siberia, Dr. Nansen observes, only 500,000 emigrants went to Siberia from Russia; but the great empire has at last awakened to a knowledge of the riches of its immense Asiatic possessions, and from 1905 to 1914 as many immigrants settled in Siberia as during the entire 200 years preceding.

A Book of Jade. THE most solid book in the world, says the Fine Arts Journal of Chicago, has recently been presented to the Field Museum. It has only 19 pages, but they contain of acutely engraved slabs of the finest jade. The book was made by order of the Chinese Emperor Kank'hai (1662-1722), and is a family document of great historic value. The text is in Chinese and Manchu, with elaborate ornamentation on the first and last pages.

It is believed that this precious relic was turned into cash through the necessities of the deposed imperial family, which has been in retirement, with a limited income, since the establishment of the Chinese republic.

The Heat Won't Hurt the Baby

If you keep him outdoors at least five hours each clear day.

If you don't put too many clothes on him.

If you let him play on your bed without any clothes on (This is his exercise.)

If you feed him regularly and are sure his food is right. And know, your mother with that precious little body in your arms—that the food counts most of all. What good are air and exercise if his little body is not fed by the food that will make him grow? He will grow big and strong on your own breast milk. And after the sixth month give one feeding a day of

Nestlé's Food

because Nestlé's is so like mother's milk that baby can combine the two. Later make it two feedings a day until—at last—the baby is all weaned on Nestlé's.

Nestlé's makes summer glad for you and easy for your baby. There's health in Nestlé's and laughter and round little legs that cling and round little legs that kick. There's no danger of unclean milk—or the germs that grow so fast in ordinary cow's milk—in Nestlé's. Nestlé's is as free from sickness as your own breast milk, because of the way it's made.

Nestlé's is made from the milk of healthy cows, in Sanitary Dairies. All the harmful, heavy parts have been changed so that the curd is soft and fleecy as in mother's milk. Then other food elements your baby needs, and that are not in cow's milk, are added—all in just the right amount.

But the three generations of healthy, happy babies speak best for Nestlé's. Send the Coupon. It will bring you, free, a box of Nestlé's Food—enough for 12 feedings—and a book about babies by specialists.

Is this a clue to Point 7?

How gum benefits the teeth

DENTAL research has found that only 1.2% of the Maoris of New Zealand have any decay of teeth. Next come the Esquimaux, only 1.4% of those examined having teeth unsound. Third rank certain tribes of Canadian Indians.

Some years ago the British Dental Association examined the teeth of 10,500 English school children. 86% had some decay of the teeth!

Why? From leading dental authorities we get this answer:

Races having the best teeth chew foods which excite the salivary glands. The Maori flavors food with the juice of the tutu-berry—a keen excitant of the salivary flow. The Canadian Indian chews wood of the sugar pine.

The human saliva is endorsed by these same authorities as Nature's own mouth wash—the best conservator of the teeth—best since man began.

In encouraging a normal flow of saliva, the clean, pure Sterling Gum brings distinct aid to the health of the teeth.

It acts against what dentists call "oral (mouth) stagnation."

The importance of this fact may lead you to suppose it the 7th Sterling point—but no; that 7th point is still as much a mystery as ever.

The Jarr Family

Written for the Post-Dispatch
By Roy L. McCordell.

Mrs. Jarr Has Just Scored Once
More as a Successful Trouble-Borrower.

"S'MATTER? You look worried, dear," remarked Mr. Jarr.
"Oh, dear!" said Mrs. Jarr in a complaining tone. "Here is Gertrude going to spend a week with her sister. Just because her sister is sick and needs somebody to look after her. And she doesn't give me any warning at all. They never have any consideration for anybody. All they think of is themselves."
"She was evidently thinking of her sick sister," ventured Mr. Jarr mildly.
"What do I care about her sick sister?" cried Mrs. Jarr angrily. "Let her sister get somebody else. I should be considered, I think. But no, that's always the way in this world. People think only of themselves!"
"Oh, well, if she's coming back in a week it won't make such a difference," suggested Mr. Jarr.
"It won't make such a difference for you, for you'll be looked after of course," replied Mrs. Jarr. "You'll be looked after, you'll be taken care of, but how about me?"
"You can get somebody for a week, can't you?" suggested Mr. Jarr.
"How can I ask any girl to come for a week?" asked Mrs. Jarr. "Suppose I don't say it is only for a week and I get another girl and she proves satisfactory, what am I to do with Gertrude when she comes back?"
"Tell her to look for another place. That's easy if you have a better girl," said Mr. Jarr.
"How will I know she's better?" asked Mrs. Jarr. "They are all good when you first get them. Then after that they are all alike."
"Well, let her go then, and take back Gertrude when she comes," said Mr. Jarr.
"And have Gertrude believe she's indispensable?" cried Mrs. Jarr. "I've a good mind not to take her back at all."
"Well, don't then," said Mr. Jarr.
"That's easy enough for you to say," remarked Mrs. Jarr. "And, besides, I don't know whether Gertrude is coming back or not; it may be only a scheme on her part to take another place."
"Wait until she comes back and see," said Mr. Jarr.
"How do I know if she's coming back?" asked Mrs. Jarr. "I never heard of such a thing—leave me with hardly a minute's notice."
"But if her sister is ill?" suggested Mr. Jarr.
"Her sister might get well and send word that it's all a mistake and she is not ill, or that she's feeling better, and Gertrude need not come or something of that sort," declared Mrs. Jarr. "But all that sort of people think of is to suit their own convenience!"
"Get another girl, then," said Mr. Jarr. "And if she is better than Gertrude, keep her. And if she isn't, let her go."
"How can I get another girl?" asked Mrs. Jarr. "Mrs. Rangle can't get a girl. All girls want to do these days is to work out by the day and they want $2 a day and their car fare! That's why I want to keep Gertrude if I can, and that's why I want her to come back."
"Hire a woman by the day until Gertrude does come back," said Mr. Jarr. "That will mean you will have somebody to help you and it will please Gertrude to find you have kept her place for her."
"Yes, and make her more independent and harder to get along with than ever," said Mrs. Jarr. "If they think you can't get along without them there is no living with them."
"Well, I'm sure I don't know what to do to help you out," said Mr. Jarr. "Do you want me to stay home from the office a week and do the housework?"
"I suppose you think you are funny!" snorted Mrs. Jarr. "But I'd like to see you try it once; and then you would see it isn't as easy as you think. If you had to work as I have to work around this house, you'd pretty soon change your tune!"
"I know it is hard," said Mr. Jarr. "But we'll get somebody to help you. When is Gertrude going away?"
"Oh, I don't know that she is going away," said Mrs. Jarr. "But her sister is ill and if she gets worse (although the last letter Gertrude had said she was improving) Gertrude may go, although she says she doesn't want to go, and anyway, her married sister has somebody taking care of her."
"Then the worst is yet to come!" suggested Mr. Jarr. "What are you borrowing trouble for?"
"Me? I haven't said anything," said Mrs. Jarr. "I only told Gertrude it was her duty to go to her sister if her sister was sick—for Gertrude didn't seem to care!"

The Limit.

MANAGER: Sir, your performance of "Hamlet" is the very worst ever represented behind the foot-lights. If there had been any money in the house I should have been bound in honor to return it at the doors. As it is, several friends have sent in and ordered me to remove their names from the free list.

Futurist Tune.

IS that futurist music you're playing? Inquired hubby as his wife pumped the piano.
"No, dear, it's 'Home, Sweet Home,' but I think Bobby has been using it as a target for his air rifle."

S'MATTER POP?

And Now That You've Got It, Axel, Teach It to Swim!

No Risk's Too Great in a Case Like This.

The Fireman: You can't come in here. The house will fall in a minute.
Mr. Fan: But I must get in. I left my baseball pass in my other vest.

Don't Ever Let Anyone Tell You This as a New One

JOHNNY, shut the shutter.
"Shutter's shut, ma. I can't shut it any shutter."

Let Her in on This.

I BELIEVE a man should be master in his own house," said the newly married man. "There can be only one head in a family, and I mean to be it."
"That's a very good idea," answered his friend, who had been married more years than the other had lived. "A very good idea indeed. Have you spoken to your wife about it?"
"I suppose you think you are funny!" snorted Mrs. Jarr. "But I'd like to see you try it once; and then you would see it isn't as easy as you think. If you had to work as I have to work around this house, you'd pretty soon change your tune!"

Appetizing.

I GOT stung good and proper on those mothballs you sold me last week," complained the customer.
"What was the matter with them?" inquired the druggist. "Werent they any good?"
"They give the moths such a terrible appetite."

His Choice.

BETWEEN the seashore and the mountains, have you any choice?
"Oh, yes. Between the two, if the distance isn't too great, my first choice is a touring car."

Second Nature.

I WONDER why jiggers always makes light of other people's misfortunes.
"It comes natural to him, I guess. You see, he's claim agent for a railroad company."

Usually the man who is said to be

"usually the man who is said to be 'very nice after you become acquainted with him' does not give you an opportunity to become acquainted.—Albany Journal."

"Some Her" Fiction.

N O, I shall not take a vacation unless you go, hubby!
"Wouldn't it be a good plan to have your folks spend the summer with us?"
"I intend of buying a new automobile, we'll pay up the mortgage first."
"We like to hear your player-piano, and did things in 'style,' and Mary was not content."
"Please 'm," she said one morning. "I wish to give notice!"
"Indeed?" exclaimed the miscreant, in surprise and dismay. "And what for, pray. Aren't you well treated?"
"Oh, I've nothing to complain of in that way," confessed the maid frankly. "But—when I wait at table there is too much changing of the plates for the fewness of the victuals!"

More Dish Than Diet.

MARY JANE didn't like the place. The people were awfully refined and did things in "style," and Mary was not content.
"Please 'm," she said one morning. "I wish to give notice!"
"Indeed?" exclaimed the miscreant, in surprise and dismay. "And what for, pray. Aren't you well treated?"
"Oh, I've nothing to complain of in that way," confessed the maid frankly. "But—when I wait at table there is too much changing of the plates for the fewness of the victuals!"

A Hot Sport.

YOUR friend Briggs has a fine coat of tan. He must be fond of out-door sports.
"He is. That fellow spends two hours every afternoon standing out in the hot sun in front of a baseball bulletin board."

"Getting" Isn't "Holding."

IT'S all nonsense about its being hard for a college graduate to get a job.
"You didn't have any trouble finding one, then?"
"One? Why, I've had six jobs in the last four weeks."

His Choice.

BETWEEN the seashore and the mountains, have you any choice?
"Oh, yes. Between the two, if the distance isn't too great, my first choice is a touring car."

Second Nature.

I WONDER why jiggers always makes light of other people's misfortunes.
"It comes natural to him, I guess. You see, he's claim agent for a railroad company."

Playing Safe.

WHAT'S this I hear? Are you really going to play first base for the village baseball team next Saturday?
"That's exactly what I'm going to do."
"But, man alive! You're 30 years old!"
"I know, but I was afraid if I refused to play the boys would make me umpire the game."
